HEALTH DEPARTMENT
WANTS MORE MONEY

Mayor Says Transfer Will be Necessary—Mr. Duncan Waiting to Hear From School Board

Mayor Murphy stated today that more money would be required to carry the board of health through the year. The amount allowed for contagious diseases, he said, was not sufficient and money for that purpose will have to be transferred from some other appropriation. The mayor thinks that the amount required will be about $2760, but he says he is not sure about it. Up to Nov. 1 the sum of $5,463.33 was spent for contagious diseases as against $7,776.50 for the whole of last year. The chairman of the school committee talked with Commissioner Duncan some time ago and told the commissioner that he thought the school department would have to be allowed more money if the evening schools

SUPERIOR COURT CASES

Two B. & M. Suits on Trial—List of the Divorces Granted by Judge Hardy

At the opening of this morning's session of the superior court, a jury was empaneled in the case of William E. Waite, adm., of Somerville vs. the Boston & Maine railroad, an action of tort by which the plaintiff seeks to recover for the death of his wife, Charlotte E. Waite, who was killed on a railroad crossing at Somerville by a train on Oct. 9, 1914.

The attorney for the plaintiff explained the case to the jury and at noon the jurors were escorted to the scene of the alleged accident by two court officers. The ad damnum in this case is $15,000. S. A. G. Cox and Frederick W. McEvoy appear for the plaintiff and Trull & Wier for the railroad company.

Cecil F. Dodge vs. B. & M. Railroad Co. The case of Cecil F. Dodge vs. the Boston & Maine railroad, an action of tort by which the plaintiff seeks to recover for alleged injuries received while a passenger on one of the trains of the company between Lowell and Boston, which went to trial Friday was resumed this forenoon, Justice Kenting presiding.

Some eight or ten witnesses were sworn in for the defense and the first called was Martin Scott, an engineer in the employ of the Merrimack Chemical Co., who testified to having been in the employ of the company for about five years. He told of a passenger train coming to a stop near his engine at about 3 p. m., and said later he was called to haul a couple of box cars owned by the Chemical company, and which had been left on the switch.

Engineer Bascom, in the employ of the Boston & Maine, and who was in charge of the train which figured in the accident, testified that on the night of the accident when his train approached a spot near the plant of the Chemical company, the engine struck something which flew up into the air, and breaking through the board at the lower end of the window of the engine, injured his leg. He said at that time he was conducting the train at a speed of between 55 and 60 miles an hour.

George J. Callahan in charge of the signal station of the Merrimack Chemical Co., at the South Wilmington station, which is located in Woburn, told of the method used in protecting the main lines of railroad companies, when his company is using them in shifting its cars. He said at first the operator of the Chemical Co. calls up the train dispatcher of the B. & M. and when permission is granted to use the main line a flagman and other signal men are placed at their respective posts.

Divorce Court Justice Hardy presided over the jury waived session of the superior court today and in the course of the forenoon granted several decrees nisi in divorce cases, all of which were out-of-town cases.

His Honor granted a decree in the case of Aldine F. White of Everett vs. Ohio K. White of Concord on the grounds of desertion. In the course of her testimony the libellant admitted that she had been married twice to her present husband, and for the second time she was applying for a divorce.

A little humor was injected into the case of Pellegrino Boscow vs. Julia Boscow. The libellant testified that her testimony the marriage his wife left him and never returned. "Were you glad when your wife left you?" asked the court. "No, I was not," was the reply.

"Do you want her to come back again?" "No, no." "Do you expect to get married again?" "No, no; well, I don't know." The decree was granted.

Decrees were also granted in the following cases: Grace B. Sumner, Somerville, vs. Alphonse T. Sumner, Brookline, statutory offense, custody of minor children to libellant; $15 a week.

Florence M. Small, Everett, vs. Frederick E. Small, Mayer, Arizona, desertion. Gladys D. Pushee, Newton, vs. Roy E. Pushee, Newton, cruel and abusive treatment; custody of minor children to libellant.

Sussie A. Staples, Everett, vs. Carleton C. Staples, Wakefield, cruel and abusive treatment; custody of minor child to libellant.

Addie D. Palmer, Malden, vs. Frank A. Palmer, parts unknown, desertion. Harriet Alice Brittain, Somerville, vs. Frederick Alfred Brittain, parts unknown, desertion; custody of minor child to libellant.

NASHUA MILLS OPENED

Majority of Strikers Still Out—200 Police Officers Had Nothing to Do

Over 200 policemen, augmented by an equal number of plain clothesmen and detectives were on duty at the plant of the Nashua Manufacturing Co. in Factory street, Nashua, N. H., this morning, when the mills, which have been closed by a strike since the early part of October, were reopened for those who wished to return to work. The move on the part of the mill officials was not quite successful as not more than 300 operatives out of the 2,000 or more employed at the big plant returned to their employment. At the Jackson Manufacturing Co., the mill owners met with similar disappointment and but few of their former employees returned.

As early as 4.30 o'clock this morning the strikers were out in large numbers to prevent any attempt of the mill agents to smuggle people into work before the regular opening time. Two special car loads of policemen from Manchester, N. H., arrived on the scene a few minutes before 5 o'clock, and they were detailed to the plant of the Nashua Manufacturing Co. to keep the large crowd of strikers moving. In addition to the Manchester officers, the entire Nashua force was also on duty at the big Factory street plant, and the uniformed men were assisted by mill specials and detectives from Boston and elsewhere. There were no outbreaks of any kind.

Shortly after 7 o'clock a statement issued by officials of the Nashua Manufacturing Co. said that over 1200 operatives had returned to work.

eratives had returned to work. Organizer Thomas F. McMahon, who has direct control of the strike situation, estimated the number returned at about 200. A representative of The Sun stationed in front of the main entrance to the plant from 5.15 o'clock until some time after the regular opening time saw less than 150 enter the main gate. This number included several specials and persons, who by their attire were set down as office employees.

The strikers held a mass meeting last night in Hamilton hall, presided over by Organizer McMahon. The strikers voted almost unanimously against returning. Evidently the authorities expected trouble this morning as they had on hand a very large force of police. A militia company was held in reserve in the factory. The mill officials declared there was a marked increase in the number of employees who returned to work after the noon hour and that the entire force at the two plants during the afternoon was between 43 and 45 per cent of normal.

MRS. BURNS, ACCUSED OF MURDER, BREAKS DOWN

Collapsed While Testifying—Says Husband Took Poison She Prepared to Use Herself

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 22.—In the midst of her own testimony today Mrs. Mary A. Burns, on trial here for the alleged murder of her husband, Frank A. Burns, by poison, broke down and the session was temporarily adjourned.

Mrs. Burns had been on the stand half an hour and had gone over the events in her life from the time she and Burns were married until the Sunday two days before his death at Nottingham, when she collapsed. She told of her life at Webster, Mass., and at Laconia, N. H., and of purchasing a quantity of cyanide of potassium with the intention of taking her own life. She testified that she and her husband arrived at Nottingham from Manchester on Saturday previous to his death and that the next morning Burns went out of the house to look after the horses.

"As he came back," Mrs. Burns stated, "I met him at the door and he said, 'why didn't you come and meet me, little girl, as you always did?' I said that I wasn't feeling well. Then he said 'have you got another of your blue spells?'"

At this point Mrs. Burns paused and the tears rolled down her cheeks. Col. Bartlett, her counsel, rushed forward with a glass of water and a moment later she was assisted to a side room. Ten witnesses preceded Mrs. Burns on the witness stand today. Frank Watton, a farmer of Nottingham, declared he saw Mrs. Burns one day, a month before the death of her husband, running about the street without her hat.

George Lepandre, proprietor of the hotel in Webster where Mr. and Mrs. Burns lived for a short time, stated that Mrs. Burns told him two women in the hotel were making love to her husband. Lepandre said that he investigated and found Burns was in the other part of the hotel and that the two women had not been near him.

Warren N. Gerrish of Nottingham, said that Mrs. Burns met him one day and asked him if he had seen her husband with a woman. He told her he had not.

Rev. Percy W. Caswell, pastor of the Court street Christian church of this city, said that he visited Mrs. Burns soon after her arrest and tried to talk with her but was unable to hold her attention. She seemed dazed, he said. In March, three months after the arrest, he found her much improved.

The witnesses were asked few questions by the prosecution.

Mrs. Burns Recovers Mrs. Burns recovered in a few minutes. Resuming her testimony she told of mixing a quantity of poison with some gin. She said the night before her husband died she told him she could not live in Nottingham any longer and that if she did she would kill herself. They sat up until 9 o'clock and before he turned out the light, she said, he took a drink.

Mrs. Burns said she was awakened the next morning when her husband was moving about the room, and remembered seeing him take another drink. She dozed off she testified and then was conscious of his sitting down heavily on the bed. When she jumped out and ran around the foot of the bed to him she declared he said "Oh Mary." At this point Mrs. Burns broke down for a second time and a recess was taken until this afternoon.

PROBLEM OF WORLD PEACE

Interesting Discussion at Grace Church Forum on How to Preserve International Peace

At the Public Forum in Grace church, Sunday night, there were discussed questions having to do with the defense of the United States. The speakers were Walter A. Greene of the Boston Journal and George E. Nesmyth of the World Peace Foundation. The subject was, "What is the best means of defense for the United States?" The answer, "An increased army and navy," was discussed by Mr. Greene, and the second answer, "A league to enforce peace," was handled by Mr. Nesmyth.

Mr. Greene was the first speaker. He said the foolish idea that once prevailed to the effect that if war came the Yankees could lick the world, has been relegated to the background. He said that when threatened by war there are three ways open to every nation. First, non-resistance; second, reliance upon arbitration and international law; third, the rather old-fashioned one of fighting. He said that the doctrine of non-resistance is not a new one and he referred to it as a "perfectly logical doctrine."

"As to arbitration and other treat-ties," he said, "they are, so far as they go, excellent; but any treaty of that sort amounts to practically no more than a written notice to the other nation that at a certain point you will begin to fight, if you do not do so before. As to the plan providing for a year's cooling off; it is excellent with one exception; that it would be difficult in practice to decide at what point notice should be given to the other nation, that the year's wait was to begin. The only protection at present for treaties based on the relation of one nation to another is international law."

"The measure of our military preparedness should be the measure of our political intentions. The citizens of the country must decide what the political intentions are, and then it will be for the military experts to tell the lay how to carry out those intentions. Are we to maintain the policy of the open door in the far east? What are we to do as to Hawaii and the Philippines? What are we going to do in Alaska, and with the Panama canal; and lastly, and most seriously, what are we going to do with the Monroe Doctrine? If we are content to give up our splendid work in Cuba, if we are content to surrender what we have done for western hemisphere in a protective way or our good work in the Philippines, or to surrender Alaska, then consider that all we need is a purely defensive force in America. To win any war in these days, a country must mobilize morally, intellectually, spiritually, economically, industrially. It is not merely a question of armaments. It is the present duty of this nation to consider well whether it intends to take its position among the nations of the world as a great power. We should fight any such thing as a large professional army; but we should adopt some such plan as that of the continental army, which will now shortly be before congress. We should train our young men, so that there will be a constant flux of men receiving and returning to civil life. We should mobilize our forces and remove our munitions plants from proximity to the sea.

Militarism does not consist in knowing how to fight. We call Germany militaristic, but by the same token we might as well call England, navalistic, or France militaristic. We must translate into our government some of the efficiency that we have only in our business. The patriotism of this country is of a paper variety. We have got to cultivate a national sense. We lack our sense of individual responsibility and our sense of collective responsibility to the group. We are individualists; we have not yet the community sense. The advantage of team play that Harvard had over Yale is precisely the advantage that Germany has over the allies today.

"It is probable that preparedness neither prevents war nor leads to it. In the hands of a government which is an autonomy or a theocracy, a large army is a danger; but in the hands of a government of the people by the people, such an armament is not a danger. In the last analysis, war or not war is in the political intention of the people."

Mr. Nesmyth's Contentions

"I deny," said Mr. Nesmyth, "that the only alternative of war is non-resistance. I contend that war is due to international anarchy. The plan that I propose is a league to enforce peace, by replacing a condition of anarchy by a condition of justice and law. Our plan calls for the creation of an international court of justice, and an international council of investigation and conciliation. All the nations entering the league shall make an agreement that they shall not declare war or begin hostilities until they have submitted their case to a court of justice; and non-judicial questions shall be submitted to a council for recommendation as to what solution seems just and equitable. If, after that committee has made its report, the nation desires to go to war, all right; but history shows that invariably the decision has been accepted.

"The court also would issue an injunction against nations doing such illegal things as blowing up passenger vessels or blockading neutral commerce. There are tremendous economic pressures that can be applied to prevent any nation from taking advantage of the time necessary to secure a just decision. We do not need to go the full length of an international police force at present. The first nation which declares war without submitting its dispute to a court or council will thereby declare war upon the whole world.

"I agree that our Monroe doctrine is a danger to America; but I think we should go about that with a constructive program. In order to obtain all the good that the Monroe doctrine is capable of and at the same time eliminate from it these dangerous aspects, we should either make it a Pan-American doctrine, asking the South American countries to join with us in enforcing it; which takes the imperialistic sting out of it, or I would make it not only a Pan-American doctrine, but a world doctrine. Any nation that refuses to sign that guaranty would immediately show its aggressive intentions. If, on the other hand, they do all join in neutralizing these countries and guaranteeing their integrity, we shall have enormously increased the protective side of the Monroe doctrine and taken out of it completely the imperialistic side. And so with the Philippines.

"You will say the neutrality of Belgium was guaranteed, and it did not hold. In the first place, the Philippines are not a highway between two nations; and second, a guaranty by all the nations of the integrity and independence of a country is a different thing from a guaranty by three nations ranged on opposing sides.

"I would go further than that, and say that we are not just to the Japanese. They are a friendly nation, but, as Mr. Greene very well says, there are elements of danger in that situation. There is no limit beyond which we cannot continue to insult them and treat them as an inferior race, without enraging them on the side of any possible enemies that we may have."

MAN MURDERED

Constable's Badge Left Behind by Providence Motorman's Slayer

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 22.—Frederick H. Bishop, a motorman employed by the Rhode Island company, was found murdered in the sitting room of his apartment on Westminster street here yesterday afternoon. About his head were cuts made by a blunt instrument, and in his body were three bullet wounds. The police are holding two men, pending an investigation.

On the floor of a room adjoining that in which the murdered man was discovered was found a regulation police constable's badge of the city of Providence and an empty revolver holster. Leah Bishop, wife of the murdered man, returned last night from a visit to friends in Pawtucket and informed the police that she had never seen the constable's badge or the revolver holster before. She said that her husband had never owned either a badge or a holster.

The crime was discovered early yesterday afternoon. A maid employed in the house noticed, while passing down the hallway, that Bishop's clothing was scattered about the floor and asked Dr. W. S. Streker, who lives on the first floor of the house to investigate.

Bishop was found badly mutilated, lying on the floor of the sitting room. He had on a shirt which bore evidences of a struggle as did the room in which the body was found. On a table, but a few feet from the body, was a note written by Mrs. Bishop in which she had told her husband that she was going away and that she had cooked enough food to last him until she returned from her friends.

The note did not say where she was going and it was not until Mrs. Bishop returned to her home last night that the police learned where she had gone. Mrs. Bishop was overcome when told of her husband's death. With the exception of the constable's badge and the revolver holster the authorities have no clues to work on.

Thomas S. MacArthur, an insurance agent who boarded at the Bishop home, is being detained by the police. He told the officers that he was in his room all Saturday night, but had heard no revolver shots or noise of a struggle.

Joseph A. Lanni, a conductor, who also boarded with the Bishops, occupied the room across the hall from the sitting room. He heard no evidence of a struggle. Lanni is also being detained.

Mrs. W. S. Streker, wife of Dr. Streker, was awakened about 4 o'clock yesterday morning by noises being made on the floor above her bedroom. After hearing a sound that resembled the falling of a heavy body to the floor she awakened her husband and both of them heard for several seconds light groans. Neither Dr. Streker nor his wife thought anything about the noises until yesterday afternoon, when the body of the murdered man was discovered.

Bishop was formerly employed as steward at Sockanesset school, a state institution. He was 33 years of age.

TRIAL OF NEW HAVEN MEN

Testimony of Alleged Corruption of Legislature in Connection With B. & M. Deal Ruled Out

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Testimony of alleged corruption of the Massachusetts legislature by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in connection with the legislation by which it was enabled to retain control of the Boston & Maine railroad in 1908 was ruled as inadmissible by Judge Hunt today at the trial of the 11 former directors of the road on the charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

Judge Hunt held that such testimony was collateral and on a subject not charged in the indictment as one of the alleged means used by the defendants in carrying out their alleged conspiracy to monopolize the commerce of New England.

The ruling was delivered after the defense had objected to questions which R. I. Batts, attorney for the government put to Charles S. Jellison, Batts wanted to know who the New Haven's legislative agent was during the 1908 session of the legislature which was during the time the New Haven had been restrained for one year by the passage of the so-called Cole bill from voting its newly acquired majority stock in the Boston & Maine.

"I am not familiar," said the court, with the evidence that the government expects to present, but as a substantive proposition evidence that the defendants intended to rely upon corrupt acts is not admissible. It opens up a collateral matter which in itself may be a criminal matter. We cannot go into a collateral matter, especially if it is one from which unfavorable inferences would be asked to be drawn.

There may arise a feeling of resentment, as it were, and the mind may be easily diverted to the collateral matter concerning which there is no direct charge involved. There is nothing within the purview of the indictment charging broad, substantive means to corrupt legislation. Judge Hunt added that there was no objection to an inquiry into legislative matters so long as they could be shown to be historically connected with the acquisition of the Boston & Maine but not as carrying the imputation of improper methods.

The government has subpoenaed several witnesses who were expected to testify as to alleged "lobbying" in the legislature.

This testimony it is now thought, will either be ruled out or restricted under the court's ruling.

When a cold settles in the bronchial tubes, with that weakening, tickling cough, immediate treatment is very important. The breath seems shorter because of mucous obstructions; usually fever is present, your head jars with every cough and your chest may ache. This is no time for experimenting or delay—you must get Scott's Emulsion at once to drive out the cold which started the trouble, and it will check the cough by aiding the healing process of the enfeebled membranes.

If you have any symptoms of bronchitis, or even a stubborn cold, always remember that Scott's Emulsion has been relieving this trouble for forty years. It is free from alcohol or drugs. Refuse substitutes.

No word has yet been received from three fishing schooners which have been missing since early last week and it is feared that they foundered in the storm which was raging off the Newfoundland coast at that time. On board the vessels were 18 men, four women and five children, returning from fishing stations on the Labrador coast.

LATE WAR NEWS

cessions if she enters the war on the side of the central powers.

Russian Attack Repulsed

In the Dvinsk region in Russia Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops repulsed a Russian attack, apparently not made in strong force.

Neither Berlin nor Paris reports infantry activity on the Franco-Belgian front. The German war office, however, mentions "lively activity" of the French artillery between the Meuse and the Moselle in the Champagne and near Lunville.

British Fleet in Battle

Copenhagen hears that a large flotilla of British submarines from 10 to 25 of them—recently has passed into the Baltic, being conveyed to the Cattagat by a powerful squadron and to the sound leading into the Baltic by destroyers. Presumably this is a new flotilla, reinforcing the units which recently have been operating with considerable effect in Baltic waters.

Italian Advance

Important progress for the Italians on the Isonzo front in their stubborn struggle for Gorizia is announced by Rome. Substantial gains are reported on the heights northwest of the city, the ground taken being held despite desperate counter attacks by the Austrians.

Further advances also are reported by the Italians on the Carso plateau, the advantage recently gained on Monte San Michele having been immediately followed by the Austrians, who were dislodged from trench after trench in this region, it is declared.

Important Serbian Victory

News in confirmation of the report that the Serbians have won an important victory over the Bulgarians near Leskovats on the main line railroad south of Nish, comes from the Serbian minister at Athens, a Paris despatch states.

Greece Renches Agreement

Notwithstanding the situation created by the blockade of Greece by the entente powers has been instituted an Athens despatch received by a Paris newspaper declares the general feeling in Greece is that serious consequences will be avoided. London has the report that a basis of agreement satisfactory to the allies regarding possible treatment by Greece of the troops of the former in Macedonia already has been reached.

British Steamers Sunk

Sinking of the British steamers Hallamshire of 4420 tons and the Merganser of 1905 tons, presumably by submarine attack, is announced in London.

IMMEDIATE DECLARATION FROM GREECE EXPECTED IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 22, 12.23 p. m.—The rumour of last week that the entente allies had determined to compel Greece to repudiate all hints that she might interfere with the passage of allied troops across her territory have been substantiated by the inauguration of a pacific blockade. This measure is expected to elicit an immediate declaration from the Greek government, defining its intention with ambiguity.

Some despatches from Athens, so far as to say this already has been attained as a result of Earl Kitchener's conference with King Constantine and that the earl received assurances of a satisfactory nature. The British government, however, has not yet intimating that Greece has complied with the demands of the allies.

Greece is described as prey of conflicting emotions, fear of Germany, whose military successes have brought the Balkan war theatre nearer and her natural sympathy for the cause of the allies, dictating opposite paths out of her present difficult neutrality. Some Greek newspapers regard the blockade of Greece as a violation of international law. It has created a profound impression, upon which immediate action is predicted.

VICTORY FOR ITALIANS

IMPORTANT ADVANCE ON ISONZO FRONT, ESPECIALLY IN GORIZIA HEIGHTS

ROME, Nov. 21, via Paris, Nov. 22, 3.20 a. m.—Italian troops have made an important advance on the Isonzo front, especially on the heights northwest of Gorizia. We began the action at night by making with great bravery, numerous breaches in very extensive barbed wire entanglements, defending remarkably strong enemy entrenchments. At dawn our infantry, adequately supported by artillery, attacked the village of Osjava and the heights to the northeast and southwest of the country lying across the route from San Floriano to Gorizia.

"The enemy offered an extremely obstinate resistance, but finally was driven back by the impetuosity of our attack. He fled leaving his trenches full of dead. We took 450 prisoners, many of whom were officers. Successive violent attacks by the Austrians advancing with shouts of 'Savoia!' for the purpose of deceiving our troops, all were repulsed with irresistible energy. On the heights of Podgora and Calvario, south of Osjava, thanks to an admirable effort carried out under a formidable artillery fire our troops took by main force two more lines of trenches and occupied almost the entire length of the summit.

"On the Carso plateau we continued business, try The Sun 'Want' column.

our advance along the northern slopes of Monte San Michele and southwest of San Martino, where we dislodged the enemy from trench after trench, making numerous prisoners.

"Enemy aeroplanes threw bombs yesterday on Schio (15 miles northwest of Vicenza) wounding slightly eight soldiers. One of our air squadrons made highly unfavorable atmospheric conditions caused by high wind, renewed the raid on the enemy aviation camp at Assevliza on which more than 1000 hand grenades were dropped. Our aeroplanes returned undamaged."

REPORT RUSSIANS DEFEATED

BERLIN, Nov. 22, via London.—Little activity on either the Russian front or that in France and Belgium is reported by German army headquarters in today's official statement.

It is announced that the Russians were driven back when they made an advance near Iloukist in the Dvinsk region.

Only artillery engagements took place along the western line. Activity of the French artillery arm between the Meuse and the Moselle, in the Champagne district and east of Lunville is mentioned.

BRITISH FLEET SIGHTED

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 22, via London.—The passage of a large flotilla of British submarines, variously estimated at from 10 to 25, into the Baltic is given here as an explanation of the recent naval activity in the Cattagat, where both German and British destroyers and submarines have been sighted.

According to current reports, a powerful British squadron conveyed the submarines to the entrance of the Cattagat at the Skaw, the northernmost point of the Jutland coast. The large ships stopped there, while the destroyers conveyed the submarines as far as Elsinore, at the narrowest part of the sound, whence the submarines alone proceeded into the Baltic.

CLARK SUPPORTS PRESIDENT

The wish was father to the thought in the prediction of many that Speaker Champ Clark would oppose President Wilson's policy of preparedness. They fondly thought that the friction which originated in the Baltimore convention still continued and that Mr. Clark would cut loose from Wilson leadership at the first graceful opportunity. Had such been the desire of the speaker, the opportunity would now be at hand, but the political prophets have been confounded. Mr. Clark has come out in favor of preparedness in words that are positive enough to prevent his later abandonment of President Wilson on this issue. Furthermore, Mr. Clark has made it more difficult than ever for Mr. Bryan to split the democratic party on the rock of preparedness.

Champ Clark has not only declared in favor of a reasonable policy of preparedness but he has given assurances of his support to President Wilson. He has not specifically favored the details of the bill to be presented to congress but he has so sanctioned the principle that it is safe to assume he will be with the president. Incidentally, he avoids the extremes of the ultra-pacifists and the ultra-militarists by declaring that he is in favor of a reasonable defence which shall not impose militarism on the country or cause the government to go bankrupt. In this he voices the sentiments of the great majority of Americans and subscribes to the sentiments of President Wilson.

That the preparedness question will arouse considerable agitation in congress is to be expected. Feeling is not normal and cannot be normal during the war and there will be ulterior motives behind some of the congressional pleas pro and con. Bryan's dove-like messages of brotherly love will be supported by many who champion militarism elsewhere, and Mr. Roosevelt's ideas will be just as ardently advanced by ammunition makers and men who have lost their grasp on the American ideal. President Wilson stands for moderation and sanity, but he sees that America cannot afford to be inefficient and weak in the face of a world that has thrown law to the winds and that is swayed by the slogan that might is right. It is gratifying to find that Champ Clark will use his great influence wisely, and his patriotic example will have a strong bearing on all Americans irrespective of party.

COME OUT AND VOTE

As an American citizen and a loyal son of Lowell you must realize the importance of the voting function both at the primaries and at election. You must know that Lowell will get the type of government which its citizens require, for if the people want the best they will not be satisfied until they get the best; if they have been getting poor and inefficient service, the remedy is in their hands. To select the men who are to administer the affairs of Lowell is therefore no slight task, and it is up to you to do your part. To vote is your privilege, but do not forget that it is also your duty. Exercise your privilege tomorrow and do your duty as a citizen; come out and vote.

Many good voters who would not think of absenting themselves from the polls on election day do not regard the primary vote as important, but it is often more important than the vote on election day. If the public choice at the primaries is not good, or in accordance with the best interests of the city, the final selection cannot be good. Do not make the mistake of thinking the primary vote unimportant; come out and vote tomorrow for the candidate that, in your opinion, is deserving of your support.

The complaint is often heard that citizens of the best type do not run for political office. In some aspects it is true, but this condition cannot be remedied while the public is indifferent. It is noteworthy that the most bitter and persistent critics are those who do not take interest enough in their city to come out and vote at the primaries or at elections. Let us have none of this tomorrow. There is a long list of candidates and it is not hard to make a choice if you vote with the proper motives. Aside with indifference, then, let us all go to the polls in our full voting strength. If we do this, the election will be representative of the city and we will get the candidates that the majority of the people desire. This is the essence of democracy and it is necessary for good city government. Come out and vote tomorrow like a citizen of Lowell in the trust and best sense.

DEFAUDING POETS

A new variety of an old firm game has been exposed in the trial and conviction of John T. Hall of New York who defrauded over fifteen hundred aspiring poets and some writers out of considerable sums of money. The method employed was the publication of plans for a fake song poem contest in which the winner was to get a handsome prize. Many took the attractive bait, were wheeled out of money for setting the poem to music and were then dropped from Mr. Hall's correspondence list. To be sure there was no contest and there was nothing straight about the entire transaction.

The original crook at the head of the publishing company made thousands of dollars which will accumulate good interest while he is serving a sentence of two years in the Atlanta, Ga. penitentiary.

There is a temptation for the paragraphers to poke fun at the poets who were duped, but the humorous side of the case does not make the crime less serious. The desire to get into print is as old as the art of printing, and some of the world's greatest writers did things as foolish in their early days as they did who turned their money and their poetry over to a clever crook. It is easier to be funny in our judgments of such things than to be just and were it not that so many sensitive natures shrink from publicity there would be many exposures of fakes such as that engineered by Mr. Hall. A casual examination of the advertising columns of many magazines will show up schemes that furnish a parallel to that exposed by federal activity.

THE CANDIDATES

There is a large list of candidates for our public offices, different in ability and different in personality. Though among them are a few of the professional politician class, the collection is on the whole better than the average, affording a good opportunity for wise selection. Most citizens know the majority well, either personally or by repute, for they have lived their lives in this city and their records are fairly well known. The difficult thing for the voter to do is to be faithful to his friends while doing his duty with no regard for personal preference. Yet, all should reject the more obviously unfit and vote for those under whose direction the voter believes that the affairs of the city will be in good hands. Since we cannot vote for all the good fellows, let us vote for those whom we believe to be the most desirable, rejecting those who have no genuine claim to public consideration, or who, having been tried, have been found woefully wanting in honor, in ability, in sincerity and in temperament. Lowell is too good a city to have any but the best possible government. It is up to the voters to see that it gets the best government, and the way to secure it is to vote for the best candidates.

COSTLY NEUTRALITY

The longer the war continues the stronger does the good fortune of this country shine out amid the darkness that hangs over the world. This good fortune, both in a material and a moral sense, comes not only from our being neutral but from our being neutral at such a great distance. Reports from Switzerland prove that some brands of European neutrality do not have a like effect. Switzerland is neutral but her neutrality has cost her $51,000,000 up to the end of October. At the beginning of the war she decided to stay aloof but meanwhile she mobilized her army and kept it in the field so as to be ready to repel any attacks on her independence or integrity. The government has just published the cost and has expressed its intention of meeting it by increased taxes, including a heavy tax on tobacco. Neutrality comes high in Switzerland, but what is fifty millions to the cost of the actual war? Belgium and Serbia were not neutral but Switzerland will have paid her taxes and recovered from the depressing effects of war long before the other nations will have forgotten or forgiven.

IN THE POLLING BOOTH

On your ballot will be many names, but you cannot vote for them all. If your vote is to count in the total, you must not vote for more than one for mayor, two for alderman and two for the school committee. From the list of candidates the men who will run for election will be selected as follows: the two who head the list for mayor will be chosen, and the highest four respectively from the list of candidates for aldermen and school committee. The individual voter has nothing to do with this selection. At primaries and elections he may vote for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled, but if he votes for more his ballot will be counted a blank. In spite of advice and former experiences, some blanks are to be expected, but any voter who gives the matter a little thought prior to marking his ballot can avoid casting a blank and who, after going to the trouble of voting wants to have his ballot counted as a blank?

WELL WORTH WHILE

The great industrial exposition of last week was one of the finest things ever done in this city to foster a good public spirit and to build up a constructive feeling of local pride. The attendance was away ahead of the most sanguine expectations and in all probability the results will be in the same proportion. Now the essential thing is to make use of the popular

enthusiasm so that the movement may have a permanent effect on the city. Individual exhibitors will undoubtedly reap the reward of their readiness to do their part, both in direct patronage and indirect advertising, but the feeling of local pride that the show engendered will have a far reaching effect. Now let us all pull together for a larger, livelier and lovelier Lowell.

SEEN AND HEARD

When the Whistle Blew

A party of visitors were being shown through a factory. Their guide was one of the assistant department foremen and he showed them the interesting points of different operations as they passed through one after the other of the departments. Suddenly the whistle blew for the close of the day and the scores of workers in the department where the party happened to be vanished like magic through the doors and down the stairway. "Do all of the workmen drop their tools the instant the whistle blows?" asked one of the party. "No, not all of them," responded the guide. "The more orderly men have their tools all put away before that time and their hats and coats on."

Signs of the Weather

The best weather prophet in the world is the United States weather bureau, which is right at least four times out of five. In regard to the less scientific guides, here are a few weather signs which are older probably than anyone living today, according to the Monitor. Experience has shown them to be fairly reliable, and some of them can be explained on a scientific basis: Moonlight nights have the heaviest frosts.

The higher the clouds the finer the weather.

The farther the sight the nearer the rain.

Dew is an indication of fine weather. When stars flicker in a dark background, rain or snow follows soon.

Expect a strong wind with stormy weather when smoke from chimneys hangs near the ground.

Here are a few in verse. They have the advantage of being easily remembered:

Clear moon, Frost soon.

Year of snow, Fruit will grow.

Rain before seven, Fine before eleven.

If the sun set in gray The next will be a rainy day.

When the wind's in the south The rain's in its mouth.

The wind in the west Suits everyone best.

If you see grass in January Look grain in your granary.

Evening red and morning gray Help the traveler on his way; Evening gray and morning red Bring down rain upon his head.

When the clouds appear like rocks and towers, The earth's refreshed by frequent showers.

He Was Some Bison

If you have a ten dollar treasury note, just take it out and glance over it carefully, and you may see the picture of Black Diamond, an aged buffalo, just put to death in New York. Or, should you desire to shed a tear or two over the likeness of the buffalo, and not possessing a $10 treasury note as previously mentioned, a nickel of 1913 mintage will enable you to propose just as well, for the buffalo's photo was used in the making of the die for that coin, as well as for the printing of the treasury note. The buffalo was more than 20 years old and the largest bison in captivity, weighing 1,550 pounds. He had been an inmate of the Central park corral for many years. The bi-

KINDS OF RHEUMATISM

In popular language the word rheumatism is a term that covers a multitude of ills of which pain is the chief symptom.

Articular rheumatism, inflammatory rheumatism, and rheumatic fever are all names for the same disease. Muscular rheumatism affects the muscles and does not spread from one spot to another like inflammatory rheumatism. Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism.

Some people have rheumatism every winter especially those people who inherit a rheumatic tendency. They will continue to have recurring attacks until the blood is built up to a strength sufficient to overcome the rheumatic poison. External applications and drugs that simply relieve the pain are useless. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and really correct the trouble.

With the poisons in the blood there is a continual combat between the health forces and the disease. When the rheumatic poison prevails the blood gets thin rapidly. When the blood is made rich and red by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the poisons are destroyed and expelled.

The free booklet "Building Up the Blood" tells the whole story and the diet book "What to Eat" will be sent on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Blew to Her Pride

An old Scotswoman who had resisted all the entreaties of her friends to have her photograph taken, was at last induced to consent to the idea. She might send her likeness to her son in America.

On receiving the first proof she failed to recognize the figure thereon presented as herself so card in hand she set out for the artist's studio to ask if there was a mistake. "Is that me?" she queried. "Yes, madam," said the artist. "And it is like me," she again asked.

"Yes, madam, it's a speaking likeness." "Awful," she said resignedly. "It's a humblin' sight."—Tit-Bits.

In autumn like a pumpkin pie!

It may be that in other days I used to walk moonlighted ways

With some girl who said to me "I know, And maybe said I loved her so

That till the stars should cease to shine I would be her'n and she'd be mine.

And out beneath the harvest moon I told her life would be all June;

That she would wait for me As sure as rivers reach the sea.

That mountain high might come between, And for a while, and oceans green.

But I would never pause for that But run to her where she was at.

Though all the armies of the world Should stand between, Where shots were hurled,

And where the deadly gases lay Along the plain, I make my way

Until I can kiss her to my breast, And then my lips would do the rest!

Extravagant? Yes, that may be, But you have talked the same as me.

But if she could not build a pie Out of a pumpkin, love would die;

I'm almost sure of that, and would To go in love and loved, is good.

But love has somehow got to eat, And homemade pumpkin pie is sweet;

And love, when fed on them will stay With one forever and a day.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind. I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. J. HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

All our testimonials are guaranteed genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.

HELD IN TOMB 12 YEARS

Girl Put Into Dungeon by Parents
—Now a Physical Wreck—Has
Forgotten How to Talk

EASTON, Md., Nov. 22.—Today a physical wreck, Miss Grace Marshall, 28 years of age, who was Saturday released from solitary confinement in her home after 12 years of imprisonment, must be taught all over how to talk. Her long isolation has resulted in complete loss of speech. Miss Marshall is now at the home of her aunt, Mrs. James, under the constant supervision of Dr. Charles C. Davidson, who was instrumental in her release.

In spite of the fact that she has been reduced by the system under which she was compelled to exist to a living skeleton of 57 pounds 4 ounces, that she has forgotten how to talk and almost how to think, the physician said yesterday, after one of his many visits to her, that he believed she would live, and that her mind would respond to the humane treatment that will be guaranteed her from now on.

"Miss Marshall understands everything that is said to her," declared Dr. Davidson yesterday afternoon. "She responds promptly to every suggestion made to her, but she is unable to talk. She tried to speak, but is unsuccessful in forming words. The most careful treatment is necessary to rebuild her, to put flesh on her poor, attenuated frame, to teach her to use words and to strengthen the mind that years of the most terrible suffering have nearly shattered."

Grace Marshall was one of several children of Farmer Marshall. At the age of 11 she was a normal child, healthy and bright and strong of mind. She was in the fifth grade of the public schools at that time and stood well among her colleagues.

Then she was taken from school to help an aunt, who was in poor health. She lived with this aunt until she was 16 years old. Then began the horror that she has suffered for 12 years.

The girl's mother died. The father married again. At 16 Grace showed signs of melancholy, which physicians say it not uncommon with girls at that age.

The stepmother says the girl was hysterical and was locked up to prevent her hurting any one. The father says the girl was insane and he locked her up because he could not afford to put her in an institution, as he declares he was advised to do by physicians.

Once in her desperation she broke through the shutters of her dungeon, but had to leap 12 feet or more to the ground below, and broke her leg. She was gathered up and carried back to her prison and the leg was re-set, but it was a poorly done job, for it left the injured limb four inches shorter than the other.

One of Marshall's daughters died, it is said, and her funeral took place from the farmhouse. Relatives of the imprisoned girl are understood to have believed that it was she who had died. So Grace Marshall practically passed out of existence so far as was known beyond the precincts of the little farmhouse in which she was locked up in a living death.

WILL WELCOME YANKEES

GREAT CHANCE FOR AMERICANS
IN RUSSIA AFTER WAR, SAYS
CAPT. HART

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Russia will welcome American brains, capitalists of industry and Yankee inventiveness at the close of the war.

This was the statement yesterday at the Harvard club of Capt. Ernest Hart, personal friend of Czar Nicholas, who has just made the longest trip through Russia in the interest of the British and Russian Red Cross societies that has been accomplished by any one person since the commencement of hostilities.

It is for the purpose of interesting Americans of all classes in Russia that Capt. Hart, who saw service in the Boer war, has come to the United States and especially to this city. He is here under the direct patronage of Prince Oldenburg of Petrograd, but wishes it understood that his work has no connection whatsoever with the work of the American Red Cross.

"My object in coming here," said Capt. Hart, "is to make known to Americans the condition of affairs in Russia at the present time. I have been in that great country within a very few weeks and know the conditions that prevail from the palace of the czar to the hut of the peasant. I have finished a journey in the interests of the Russian Red Cross, inspecting Red Cross stations, that has taken me over a route of 20,000 versts, or about 15,000 miles."

"What was the real feeling among the Russian soldiers when the Grand Duke Nicholas was deposed from his great power at the head of the army?" asked the reporter.

"There was a feeling of the utmost loyalty towards the czar, who became supreme commander at the head of all the forces in the empire. If any person thinks that the Russian soldier is not loyal to his country and his emperor he is mistaken. Why, the common soldiers fairly worship the czar, whom they term 'little father.' The Russian soldier will give his life, will give all that he has for his emperor and country. The idea that he goes abroad that he is an indifferent fighter, without interest in the final outcome, is all wrong."

"What will be the outcome of the war? Will the allies win?" inquired the newspaper man, without much doubt in his mind as to the answer that would be given.

"There is not the slightest feeling of doubt in the minds of the Russians," replied Capt. Hart. "They know that they have unlimited means at their command. As far as the British army is concerned I will say that it has not yet reached its height in power. More and more men are enlisting and the army is being perfected in every way."

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 22.—Six Swedish girls, including one said to have been Joseph Hillstrom's sweetheart, acted as pall bearers at his funeral services here yesterday. WEDDED IN THE OPEN AIR

MISS RYAN AND H. B. STEVENS,
SUFFRAGIST EDITORS, MARRIED
BY OWN RITE

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—On the crest of a hill on a farm at Hooksett, N. H., with nothing but the sky and clouds above, winds blowing the cold air across the Merrimack river on them and whistling through the leafless trees, Miss Agnes R. Ryan, managing editor of the Woman's Journal, the leading publication of the suffragists, was married yesterday to Henry B. Stevens, who has been associated with her in the publication.

Only the immediate relatives of the two were witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. B. A. Robinson, the ritual for which was prepared by themselves and modeled in the one by which Lucy Stone and Henry Blackwell were married years ago.

And while they are married, before Miss Ryan would consent to the ceremony, she insisted that she should not have to bear the name of the man to whom she is wed.

COMM. CARMICHAEL

HE FEELS PROUD OF THE FILTRATION PLANT AND CLAIMS IT HAS SOLVED THE WATER PROBLEM

If it is your desire to visit the filtration plant at the boulevard, you're welcome. More than 600 persons went out to look the place over Sunday afternoon and in view of the interest shown in the inspection, Commissioner Carmichael announces that the plant will be open for inspection for the next week or ten days and that employees of the department will be on hand to show visitors about and explain things to them. "The commissioner is very proud of the plant and predicts that it has solved the problem of pure city water for a great many years. He says it has attracted attention all over the country and that experts on water purification are willing to let up in magazines and many have planned to come long distances to inspect it in all its technical features."

KILLED HIS STEPFATHER

CHARLES H. LUCAS DID IT TO
PROTECT HIS MOTHER, HE SAYS

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Twenty-four-year-old Charles H. Lucas, who is charged with beating his stepfather, Silas H. Milroy, to death with a baseball bat at their home, 51 Oak street, Somerville, early yesterday morning, told the police that he struck Milroy because he could not control himself when he saw his mother being threatened by her husband.

His mother, Mrs. Milroy, declared that she lived in dread of her husband when he had been drinking, and that she had feared he would kill her.

After killing his stepfather, Lucas is said to have asked his cousin, Fred Samadell, to notify the police. When they arrived they found Lucas seated in a chair in the kitchen with the bat in his hand.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A most interesting meeting of Central council, A.O.H., was held yesterday afternoon in Ellerman hall with a large attendance of members. A letter from the state president was received showing his regard for the order in Lowell and surrounding towns. James J. Harold, the county president, expressed his intention of visiting Lowell, on Dec. 2, when divisions will have a grand social night. The Ladies' auxiliary will also be present.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

The annual meeting of the members of the Lowell Equal Suffrage league was held Saturday evening with Mrs. Charles D. Palmer, president, in the chair. The treasurer, Miss Bertha Abbott, read her report which showed that the receipts amounted to $112.65, while the expenses were $145.63, leaving a balance on hand of $254.97. Bills payable, $98.44, leaving the amount of money available, $158.53.

A feature of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Mrs. Charles D. Palmer, president; Mrs. Evelyn Hillsbury and Mrs. C. Brooks Stevens, vice presidents; Miss Bertha M. Abbott, treasurer; Mrs. Blanche Hart Murphy, corresponding secretary and delegate to state executive board; Miss Ella M. Wells, recording secretary.

SAYS FOSS PAID $1000

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Michael J. Hines, treasurer of the Massachusetts Trade Union Liberty league, at a meeting of the Boston Central Labor union yesterday, made the announcement that ex-Gov. Eugene N. Foss paid $1000 to settle the libel suit of Denis D. Driscoll, which grew out of the recent primaries campaign.

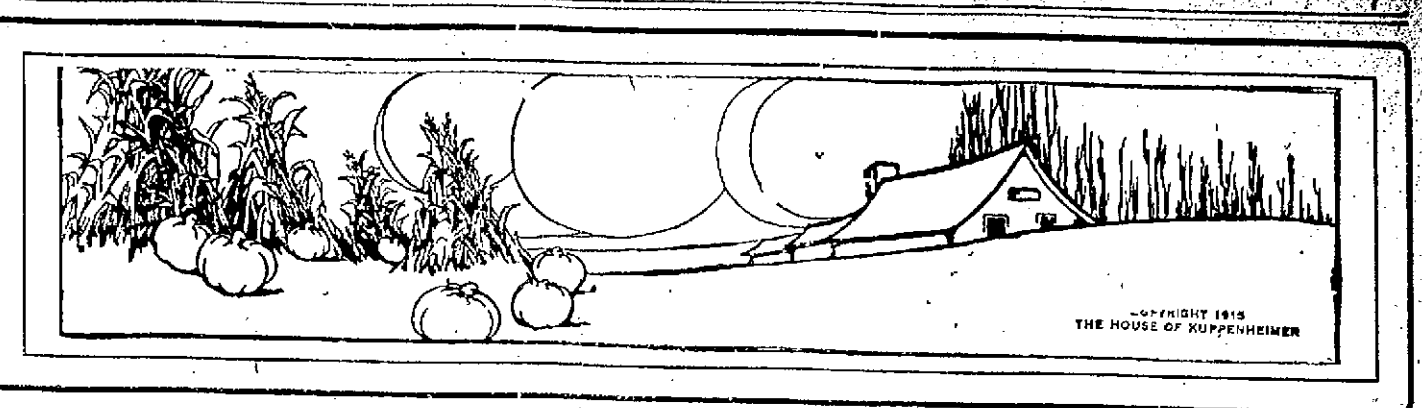

This was the first statement from either party as to the suit, and was made in an address by Mr. Hines in which he was answering the statements of the Anti-Suffrage league contained in a circular which had been scattered about the hall before any of the delegates arrived.

TO PASS ON DEFECTIVES

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—As a result of the case of the Bollinger baby, which was allowed to die last week because of its deformities, a board of judges will be formed to decide all such questions in the future.

A movement to this end is expected to start under the auspices of eugenicists, physicians and laymen, as the result of the recommendation of the coroner's jury of physicians, who weighed the evidence in the Bollinger baby case. The movement will probably be a national in scope. It is likely that a federal law will result.

THANKSGIVING!

Thanksgiving has ever been home-coming time, a day when all of us turn toward the family hearth, pledging again, in the bounties of nature, those ties we hold most dear.

Truly, this has been a strenuous year, a year of tremendous activity, of events crowding one upon the other with startling rapidity and as we pause amidst the tumult, one great thought must come home to all of us . . . Peace and the bountiful blessings of peace are ours . . . Let us be thankful.

This great store of service is moving steadily ahead upon the highway of progress. Old friends remain steadfastly with us, new friends, in greater numbers, are coming to know our greater values, and the satisfaction which comes only from faultless merchandise, satisfaction which makes for true thanksgiving on their part and ours, satisfaction made possible by such good merchandise as we carry.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—While his wife and three children sobbed hysterically by his deathbed and neighbors stood by unable to alleviate his suffering, the three men that stabbed Collegio Lamonic, aged 33, of 76 Carter street, in front of his home about 6 last evening, escaped. Lamonic died without making any statement to the police, as they were not notified of the stabbing until an hour after it happened.

were to be continued throughout the year. The commissioner told the school committee chairman to prepare a statement to be submitted to the municipal council. The commissioner's financial report for October shows that the school department, out of an appropriation of $473,574.00, has an unexpended balance of $122,238.11 and he allows that the department should pull through the year quite cheerfully on that amount.

Enters An Appeal

In the case of Patrick Crowley who was injured while working in a trench at the boulevard filtration plant the city solicitor has appealed to the supreme judicial court against the finding of the industrial accident board. Crowley was in the employ of the water department at the time of the accident. He was working in a trench that was not shored and there was a cave-in. Crowley was injured and a little later he was sent to the Insane hospital at Danvers. He is still at the hospital. At a hearing under the workmen's compensation act a committee on arbitration reported in favor of Crowley to the extent that his guardian, his wife, be allowed $5 a week for 500 weeks. There was a review of the case before the full industrial accident board and the board sustained the finding of the arbitration committee. The city solicitor has now appealed to the supreme judicial court.

Pipe Extension
The water department is putting in in 50-foot 8-inch extension in Stackpole street near the junction of East Merrimack street, at a point where a break occurred several weeks ago. This is one of several jobs that are being attended to by the water department at the present time. No attempt has yet been made by the water department to make the proposed connection between the pipes of the Locks & Canals and the water department pipes in case of fire. Supt. Thomas said today that the delay was due to the fact that Engineer Hiram F. Mills of the Locks & Canals has not been in very good health. Mr. Thomas expects, however, that the matter will reach the council this week and the council, by the way, will meet Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Ready for Primaries

Everything is in readiness for the primaries tomorrow and don't forget, Mr. Voter, that the polls open at 12 o'clock, noon, and close at 3 p. m. Wednesday will be the last day for registration for the city election. All persons claiming the right to vote at the city election and desiring to be registered are notified to appear before the board of registrars of voters at their office in the basement at city hall between 12 noon and 10 p. m. on Wednesday. The city election will be held Tuesday, Dec. 14.

Additional and Alterations
Margaret W. Merrill has been granted

ed a permit for somewhat extensive alterations to a building at 531 Market street. The estimated cost of the additions and alterations is $1000.

Another Expense Account

John J. O'Connell who was nominated over a rather classy field of opponents for representative in the 15th district has filed his expense account with the city clerk as required by law. Mr. O'Connell's account reads as follows: "Owing to no opponent I had no expenses."

Entente Allies Declare Commercial Blockade—Report Greece to Yield—Kitchener Visits King

SALONIKI, Nov. 21, via Paris, Nov. 22.—It is rumored here that the entente allies having decided to carry the commercial blockade to the extent of establishing a war zone around Greece and cutting off all supplies, Greece express the hope that no such drastic action will be taken. The Associated Press has learned, however, that the French authorities immediately made the strongest representations to the throne, respecting the necessity that Greece give assurances of more active co-operation with the allies.

Denny's Coghlin, French minister without portfolio, who has been conferring with Greek officials, has gone to the front.

TO KEEP ALLIES' DEMANDS

LONDON, Nov. 22.—While no official statement has been published, it is certain the Greek government has resolved to give the allies every assurance required to dispel their apprehensions concerning possible treatment of their troops in Macedonia, and that a basis of agreement satisfactory to the allies already had been established, says an Athens despatch to the Times.

KITCHENER MADE DEMANDS

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The entente allies have demanded that Greece either join them and fulfill her treaty obligations to Serbia, or demobilize and in the latter case, Constantine that they mean what they say, the allies have declared a commercial blockade of the Hellenic empire.

The allied fleets have already begun searching all steamers flying the Greek flag in the Aegean and the Mediterranean.

Lord Kitchener, the British war secretary, who had an hour's audience with the king of Greece Saturday, and afterwards saw Premier Skouloudis, took a firm stand and told them what the allies could and would do unless the demands were conceded.

The Greek cabinet met to consider the situation, and a few hours should show what Greece's future attitude will be.

BLOCKADE OF GREECE

PARIS, Nov. 22.—The declaration of a commercial blockade of Greece by the entente powers has produced a marked impression in Athens, particularly among the military and naval authorities.

REGAINS SPEECH

Girl Who Was Imprisoned in Home for 12 Years Asks for Apple

FALSTON, Md., Nov. 22.—Grace Marshall, the young woman whose father and stepmother are charged with having imprisoned her in their home near St. Michaels, for nearly 12 years, spoke today for the first time since her liberation last Friday. She asked for an apple she saw on the table of her room in her aunt's home, where she is under the care of a physician.

Miss Marshall was imprisoned, it is alleged, after attempting to elope, at the age of 16 with a man of whom her father disapproved. Relatives thought her dead. Marshall is said to have admitted that the woman's stepmother was the only person who had seen her during the last three years.

The representative of the local Children's Aid society, through whose instrumentality Miss Marshall was liberated, was expected to lay the case before the state's attorney today.

Milroy was killed yesterday, the police charge as the result of a family quarrel. Officers who made the arrest stated that Lucas claimed he acted in the defense of his mother.

as it was unexpected. An Athens despatch to the Petit Journal says the newspaper organs of the Greek government accuse the allies, especially Great Britain, of seeking to drag Greece into the war by harsh measures.

These papers assert Greece has given sufficient proof that she intends to maintain the policy of benevolent neutrality and has had no thought of taking hostile steps. However, she cannot permit transference of the theatre of war into her own territory. It is suggested that the measures taken by the allies may result in withdrawal of Greek troops from the frontier or even in partial demobilization.

The section of the press which supports Premier Venizelos accuses the government of having brought on, by want of foresight a conflict with the entente powers. General feeling, however, is one of optimism and it is believed serious misunderstandings will be avoided.

CALLED 'ACT OF VIOLENCE'

BRUSSELS, Nov. 22, (by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The news that the commercial blockade of Greece by the entente powers as "an act of violence against a small neutral country which intends to maintain neutrality without engaging in intrigues." The blockade, it says, "agrees exceedingly well with the practice of the entente powers, who are ready to punish those who play tricks with them."

ONLY WAY TO CURE KING

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The informal commercial blockade of Greece is described by the Pall Mall Gazette today as "the first instalment of the only medicine which can cure King Constantine's affliction." The Gazette adds:

"The one argument to which Constantine is amenable, is demonstrated by the fact that he is amenable with more ability and are ready and able to punish those who play tricks with them. 'We have seen enough to convince us we can rely upon good faith in that quarter only by exhibiting the punishment which awaits guile. The blockade is the only medicine of that kind, to which the king should be subjected without delay.'"

BRITISH STEAMERS SUNK

LONDON, Nov. 22, 12.35 p. m.—The British steamships Hallamshire, 1420 tons gross, and Morgan, 1065 tons, have been sunk. Their crews were saved.

The British steamship Salsotto from London for Bombay is ashore south of Has Abi Borez in the Gulf of Suez. She has signalled for immediate assistance.

THE ART OF WEARING JEWELRY

The unusual production that was held at the Carnegie Music hall in New York recently, under the title of "Yesterday and Tomorrow," has served to bring back to this country a notable Parisian fashion artist, Eugene Carrol Kelley, who has made a name for himself in the past few years as an expert in costume and as an artistic designer of women's dresses, particularly evening gowns. The production at Carnegie hall is an international fashion extravaganza and Mr. Kelley was brought here to direct it from an arrival in New York he has been largely quoted in the newspapers in interviews upon his general ideas as to gowns and particularly the styles of the coming season, and has not only given the information desired but has at the same time enunciated principles on the general question of costume which are of interest to the jeweler as well as to the dressmaker and the public.

Mr. Kelley has laid down the maxim that it matters not whether a woman has $10,000 or $100 a year to spend on her clothes, beauty, harmony and dignity may be sustained if she uses thought and judgment in choosing her garments. His ideas and principles are so thoroughly in accord with the campaign of education of the public in regard to the wearing of jewelry that his attention was called to the work "The Jeweler's Circular" had been doing in the education of the public, with the request that he express himself as to the relation between jewelry and dress. The work of this journal in its educational campaign was highly endorsed by this artist in every way, as he realized that in costume the jewelry after all is the final note and often becomes the optical center of the picture which the well-dressed woman presents; that the jewelry which she afterwards puts on may make or mar the work of the artist who has designed the gown or spoil or enhance the good taste expressed by the wearer in choosing the gown and its material. In fact, it is an after-note, often outside of the dress creator's hands, but is one which has a most serious effect upon his work.

"The close relationship between dress and jewelry must be so generally recognized that to dwell upon it would be superfluous," said Mr. Kelley, "and the principles which I have sought to enunciate as underlying the wearing of jewelry extend directly to the jewelry which is worn with the costume. Your campaign of education to teach the public the first principles in the wearing of jewelry has struck exactly the right note and is exactly in accord with my ideas on the subject. The jewelry which is worn with the costume is undoubtedly the points to keep in mind and in a general way cover the subject. There is no doubt that the American women are great wearers of jewelry and, in fact, jewelry is more generally worn here than in Europe, so that the education of the American woman as to jewelry wearing is, therefore, perhaps, more important in America than anywhere else in the world.

"The American woman is a woman of taste and all we have to do is to show her the right thing and she will recognize it. I have no excuse for the cheap and inartistic effects in dress. No matter what the price at which they are made—no matter whether they are expensive or whether they are made for a few dollars, gowns can be made artistically, properly and of the best material available for the price; the same principles can be carried out in the jewelry which adorns these gowns.

"The individuality which should be shown in the selection of a gown can also be shown in the selection of the jewelry to wear with it, and we should pay more attention to this point and while following the general trend of fashion should not permit ourselves to be molded into stereotyped lines. When the American woman does follow fashion blindly, she tends to make the fashionable dress a sort of uniform, because it is the fashion, whereas, while following the general trend, and understanding the dominating note of the style, she should see to it that her individual characteristics are considered in the final application. The third point which is emphasized so well in your campaign of education of jewelry wearing, namely, that the effect be becoming to the individual wearer, should never be lost sight of. It is due to the importance which I place on this point that to some extent I have favored the use of specially made jewelry for the woman who wishes to dress in exquisite taste. Of course, I understand that this can only apply to the woman of wealth and fashion. The girl or matron who cannot afford to have her jewelry made especially to suit her individual characteristics must, therefore, see to it that she selects from the products on the market those which are both appropriate to the gown and becoming to her features and form.

"We must constantly bear in mind in the use of jewelry that it is an ornamentation, that unless properly used (even though becoming), may clash with the ornamentation of the dress itself. I believe that we should give consideration to this point to the extent of considering how much, or how little jewelry is to be worn with the gown before the latter is set upon. The more jewelry to be worn the less ornamentation there should be on the gown. I have found the best dress on which to show off jewelry is the simplest in general effect. It must be new, it must be modern, it must be used purely as a background to get the best effect of the jewelry, the jeweler being given the task of the decoration.

"To the woman of fashion and wealth who can have her gowns specially designed, emphasis should be laid on the importance of having her consult with the designer of the gown as to the jewelry which is to be worn upon it. If she owns expensive jewelry which she wishes to use, the designer should understand exactly what she intends to apply as an adornment before the gown is determined upon. In fact, she should bring her jewels to the designer and let him carry out the motive or prepare for the effect which will be obtained by the gown and jewelry together. It is unfortunately true that lots of women of means purchase jewelry that they like and often show exceedingly good taste in their purchases, but do not consider their gowns in so doing. Then they buy the gowns which they like with equally good taste without considering the jewelry that they have or intend to wear with them. When they put these together, inharmonious often results and they do not know why.

What the Cook Says

When doing up her dishes Cook says she would feel lost without some number O steel wool. She cleans the bottom of her kettles, her aluminum ware and takes off any burnt food in kettles with it. She dips a wad in kerosene and cleans her gas range with it. She also keeps a wad on her ironing board to clean her irons on.

Cook stretched a piece of light-weight cheesecloth over the opening of our furnace pipe just under the register, and you would be surprised at the amount of dust and ashes it prevents from getting about the house, as well as the smoke on the walls near the register. The cloth does not interfere with the draft of the furnace in the slightest.

Cook is a great user of salt for a great many things. She says that a little salt added to mustard, helps to prevent it from drying or caking. To make the gas burn brightly she sprinkles a little salt over the top of the mantle. She does this while the gas is burning.

When her oven does not brown as well as she would like to have it, she puts her cakes or tarts on the upper tray and throws a little sugar on the floor of the oven.

She told me today how to make striped sandwiches. While and brown bread is cut thin and placed in alternating layers. It is then wrapped in a dampened cloth and placed under a weight overnight. Then the pressed layer may be cut in narrow strips.

Cook suggested the other day that she had a very good plan to utilize an old umbrella. Remove the cover and enamel the frame white to prevent rust. Then suspend the frame by the handle from the ceiling near the range and on ironing day she finds it useful for small articles which can be hung on the points to finish drying. When not in use she can put up the frame and it takes up little room.

She says to clean a white enameled bed to dissolve one tablespoon of baking soda in one pint of warm water. Saturate a soft cloth with the mixture and wash the bed. This process should clean any white enameled furniture.

LADY LOOKABOUT

So many times of late I have been conscious of a suggestion of ripeness in the air, and I have wondered if the mists of ripening employed by retailers may not well be investigated. The fruit is necessarily gathered in an unripe condition and is shipped here as it is gathered. This unripe fruit is then ripened by means of heat. Often it is done in rooms where the fruit is covered with non-descript rags, clothing, bedding and discarded carpets and burlap. This may not be true, but I cannot help thinking that the latter process of ripening would account for the unwholesome suggestion of mouldiness so often present.

The Paniclettes

As our skirts grow shorter and shorter, we are in danger of losing a flexible reel of wire through the hem of our petticoats. Fashion has ever been a cruel, much-loved, much-feared task-mistress, and for the most part we have been obedient and uncomplaining devotees, even when she ordered us, fat or slim, to don tight skirts; even when she ordered us, old or young, to uncover our necks to the public view. At her command we adopted Happy Hooligan hats when every feature of our face wept for brimmed head-gear, but this newest edict, that we must wear our very short, very full skirts, dismay us. I fear it is the straw that will break the camel's back. The camel probably will live through it. I predict a great run of popularity for paniclettes.

Tele-a-Tele Tables

Something of the spirit of sociability seems to have gone from the soda fountain of a downtown catering company with the removal of the little tea cream tables. They made such a delightful excuse for lingering with a friend over refreshments, that I suppose we did abuse the privilege of using them. Now that they are gone we realize that they furnished a large part of the charm of dropping in there, and we feel that we are being silently admonished to partake of our refreshment and hasten on our way. Under the present condition, an indefinable something which I am tempted to call "the social atmosphere" seems to have deserted the place.

Our Thankfulness

With such a delightful autumn, it seems hardly possible that the season of Thanksgiving is again with us. It has always seemed to me that no matter how buffeted by misfortune one may be, he always has something for which he may be devoutly thankful, even if it be, as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" suggests, that he have not a hare-lip—providing of course that he have not one.

This year I am sure that the one great subject for thankfulness, the over-shadowing and over-topping all

SLEEPTIME TALES

LAZY HOWARD

Once upon a time Howard's mother said she thought he was the laziest boy in town and that something must be done to break him of the bad habit. He didn't like to get up in the morning or go to school or to help his parents in so many little ways as other children did. Now, Howard did not mean to be a bad boy and he loved his father and mother very dearly, only he didn't just get around to doing things.

One bright, sunny day he went out into the garden to play and, as there was no one to play with, he asked a bumblebee to come and play with him. But the bee only flew away to a late flower that was still in bloom as much as the time to play. Then Howard asked a bird to come and play with him, but the bird flew away with a soft feather in his mouth, chirping as though to say: "Can't you see I am fixing my nest for the winter and can't stop?"

Howard found it was no fun playing alone so he sat down under a tree and watched the birds and the flying clouds. Soon his head dropped and he fell fast asleep. Just then Howard felt something take hold of his leg and his arm and in a minute he was lying through the air, as fast as any bird and soon was in a big forest right in front of the door of a great castle.

He was taken before the king, a great, gruff looking man, who asked him why he was not doing his part of the world's work. Poor Howard was very much frightened and couldn't answer. The king then said for his men to take Howard out and show him how everyone was working at something and how happy they were in doing so. The boy saw that everyone was singing and laughing while they worked, but as soon as they saw him they grew angry and ran towards him, crying: "This is that lazy boy. Let's punish him." They pulled his ears and hit him with their hands and bees began to sting him so that he cried out with pain and, as he did so, he awoke and found the bee on his hand.

Howard is not a lazy boy now and is called a real little helper for he doesn't want to have any more frightful dreams.

THE FRENCH MAID SAYS:

HOUSEKEEPING ECONOMICS

"I simply must get our housekeeping bills down lower," sighed Marjorie. "They seem to get more and more all the time and I am completely discouraged."

"Perhaps you and Mary can help by both watching the little things in buying for food," encouraged Marie. "Many of the little savings which seem too trivial to mention and much beneath the average maid's attention would, if carried out, make a vast difference in the buying of food."

"It is well to remember that if you save a cent on a purchase of five cents you are saving not only a cent, but 20 per cent, which seems more worth while. When using a dozen eggs, as happens in some families often and in others on occasion, try scraping out the egg shells with a spoon. This will give you the amount of one egg and is well worth saving, especially when eggs are so very high."

"When eggs are cheap they should be put down for the winter. Packed in water glass, they are just as good for any form of baking and will keep a year if properly done. A quart of water glass added to 12 quarts of boiled and cooled water, put into large alone crocks after the eggs are placed, will keep them perfectly. The eggs should, of course, be perfectly fresh and great care taken not to crack them. Cover the jar and keep in a cool place."

"One of the common wastes in most homes is the unscrapped mixing bowl. Spatulas may now be brought in at ten cent counter and a few turns of the wrist with a spatula will scrape out a dish, often saving the amount of an individual cake or gem or biscuit. If round bottomed mixing bowls are used for dough mixtures, the scraping process will be much shortened, as the spatula, being flexible, will take up every bit of the dough."

"When apples are used, if the parings are saved and boiled with a little water, then the water added to equal quantities of sugar and boiled, a glass of jelly or two, which will be as good as new, will be ready for your table."

IN MILADY'S BOUDOIR

ATTRACTIVE HANDS

Attractive hands almost any woman may own if she is willing to give to these members a certain amount of time and thought. Time, because no hand will present the well groomed and cared for appearance that good form demands if treated only to a casual soap and water washing several times a day with an accompanying use of a nail stick and thought because more than mere time must be given to the subject if one is to make the very most of one's hands. Cultivate the habit of whisking in orange stick about whenever its point has been used to push back the cuticle about the edge of the nail, or the blunt or rounded end of the stick, if this is done systematically several times a day, the valuable half-moon at the base of the nail will always be in evidence, and the nails will maintain their proper shape.

Then you will not have to spend a frantic half hour pushing back the hardened cuticle, and perhaps acquire a sore finger into the bargain, when you are suddenly invited at short notice to go somewhere.

Never clip the nails into shape unless you want them to become thick and coarse at the edges. Clipped nails also break off more readily, especially in cold weather. Every woman should have a pair of curved manicure scissors on her dresser, but they should be put to use seldom, and then only for clipping a hang nail, or for cutting the ends or sides of an over-long nail.

The dainty shaping should be done carefully with the nail-file and the nails may be pointed or rounded as the shape of the fingers and the general shape of the hand suggest. Very thin, tapering fingers look unpleasantly like lions when the nails are too long and too sharply pointed. Fanned nails also emphasize the thinness of naturally thick and stubby fingers.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS SUPPLIED SEA RAIDERS

Sermon on Calumny by Rev. Fr. O'Brien, O. M. I.—Notes of the Other Parishes

High mass at the church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday was celebrated by Rev. James McCarthy, O. M. I., and the sermon was preached by Rev. John M. O'Brien, O. M. I., who took for his text the eighth commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." In his effective and earnest manner, Fr. O'Brien drove home the practical lessons of his sermon, blending eloquence with lucid treatment of his subject. He spoke in detail of the evils of calumny and detraction, showing the great danger done by the tongue of the scandal monger who is often the source of family feuds and neighborhood disturbances in the community. He spoke of the malicious slanderer who attacks the good name of a neighbor and also of the idle gossip who spreads a source of sin and scandal. He gave special emphasis to the necessity for reparation, so far as possible, before the sins of calumny and detraction are forgiven. In the case of calumny or slander, the malicious statements must be retracted, and where the detractor is unwilling to do so, the good name of the injured party must be restored to a public which was not aware of them, the detractor is obliged to offset the damage done by emphasizing the good points in the victim's character. The sermon was strikingly practical and its lessons could be brought home with effectiveness to any congregation or audience.

There will be a business meeting of the Third Order of St. Francis on Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening the Y. M. C. I. will hold its annual social and dance. There will be a special good time assured.

It was announced at the Immaculate Conception as well as all the Catholic churches of the city that a collection will be taken up next Sunday for the Catholic university.

St. Columba's

Rev. John A. Degan, pastor, celebrated the parish mass at St. Columba's yesterday and preached a strong sermon on the gospel of the day, with special reference to the need for Catholics to adhere to the principles of their faith in the face of modern dangers. Fr. Degan drew a strong picture of that portion of the modern world which is going to extremes in scientific development and soulless efficiency, saying that the tendency is noticeable in the modern world to regard the individual as a mere machine, and that we read and hear daily of things that are directly at variance with Christianity and a disgrace to Christian civilization, and he warned his congregation against having their principles endangered by false teachings. Much so-called new thought, he said, is as old as sin and is merely brought forward now in a new guise. He also said that there can be no real society which does not recognize the human soul and he condemned those who would justify the deliberate destruction of the body in which the soul is residing.

Rev. T. W. Buckley celebrated the 8:30 o'clock mass at which the members of the Children's sodality received communion.

St. Patrick's

Monsignor William O'Brien celebrated the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday and the members of the Married Ladies' sodality and the Children of Mary received communion in a body. Rev. James J. Kerrigan assisted in giving communion.

The high mass was celebrated by Rev. Joseph A. Curran and the sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Kerrigan. It was announced that the Holy Name society will hold a business meeting next Tuesday night to plan for the social season. It is the intention of the officers to hold a number of smoke talks such as proved a success last season.

Sacred Heart

The annual retreat for the women of the Sacred Heart church will be started next Sunday under the direction of Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O. M. I., and Rev. William Stanton, O. M. I.

High mass yesterday was celebrated by Rev. William Stanton, O. M. I., of the Tewksbury novitiate, and the sermon was preached by Rev. Charles Fallon, O. M. I. At the 8:30 o'clock mass the members of the Holy Angels sodality received communion in a body. Rev. James Gallagher, O. M. I., was celebrant of the mass, assisted by the pastor, Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., in giving communion. A social will be held for the children of the parish Thursday afternoon in the parish hall.

St. Peter's

Rev. D. J. Heffernan celebrated high mass at St. Peter's yesterday, and the sermon was preached by Rev. D. J. Crayton. The 7:30 o'clock mass was celebrated by Rev. W. Geo. Mullin, and the Boys' sodality received communion in a body.

St. Michael's

Members of the Immaculate Conception sodality received communion at the 8 o'clock mass at St. Michael's, which was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John J. Shaw. High mass was celebrated by Rev. Henry Tattan and the sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. Lynch.

St. Margaret's

High mass at St. Margaret's yesterday was celebrated by Rev. Henry T. Reardon, who also delivered the sermon. The Women's sodality will conduct a whist party in the parish hall Tuesday evening, and a large attendance is anticipated.

DEDICATES NEW CONVENT

CARDINAL O'CONNELL OFFICIATED

AT ST. ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL—

SISTERS HAVE SPLENDID HOME

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Cardinal O'Connell dedicated the handsome new convent building at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton, yesterday. It was a double celebration, as yesterday marked the 50th anniversary of Sister Rose in religion. Sister Rose is the mother superior of the convent, and head of the community of sisters attached to St. Elizabeth's hospital.

The dedication began with the celebration of mass by the cardinal. He was escorted from the hospital building to the convent by the Rev. Joseph E. Conner, P. M., of St. Augustine's church, South Boston, and the Rev. J. P. Fallon, chaplain at the convent. Dr. John R. Slattery, superintendent of the hospital, P. B. Fitzpatrick, City Councilor J. J. Attridge and John H. Lee. At the conclusion of the mass, which was begun at 9 a. m., Cardinal O'Connell addressed the gathering of about 200 active workers in the campaign in 1914 to raise funds for the endowment of the hospital. He said that St. Elizabeth's is already a glorious success; that it is second to no hospital anywhere from a scientific point of view; that it had a staff equal to any other in efficiency, skill and devotion; and that it is the very best work in equipment. He paid a tribute to Mother Superior Rose and to all the sisters attached to the hospital. He also paid tribute to Mrs. Slattery and Harrington and to the workers. At the conclusion of his address, the cardinal held a reception in the reception hall adjoining the chapel.

The music was furnished by a choir of 25 voices, made up of the nurses attached to the hospital. Nurse Anna E. Healey was the organist, and Nurse Molly O'Brien, the violinist. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given at 4 p. m.

ADMIRAL BOGGS DEAD

RETIRED FROM UNITED STATES NAVY AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS OF SEA DUTY

PARIS, Nov. 22, 455 a. m.—Rear Admiral Lawrence G. Boggs, U. S. N., retired, is dead at his home in this city. He left the active service in 1905 after 18 years of sea duty.

Rear Admiral Boggs was born in the District of Columbia and entered the navy as an assistant paymaster Sept. 21, 1868, becoming a post assistant paymaster in 1874 and was promoted to the rank of paymaster in 1895.

INDIANS' FIRST DEFEAT

The Indian football team of this city won its first game, 12 to 0, yesterday afternoon to play the eleven of the Hawthorn San Francisco. The team won after a hard fought contest, 12 to 0. The Lowell team was considerably out weighed but put up a plucky game. This was the first defeat of the season for the Indians, but the players do not feel downhearted as their victory makes up a heavy, experienced eleven, which has won from some of the best teams in this part of the country.

Charge Against Head of Hamburg-American Line and Three Employees—Trial Opens

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The opening session today of the trial of Karl Buehn, managing director of the Hamburg-American line, and three other officials of the line, under indictment on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government was devoted towards selecting a jury before Federal Judge Howe. The government alleges that the defendants secured false clearance papers for steamers sailing from New York with supplies for German sea raiders in the Atlantic during the early part of the war. The trial is the first important one in connection with the various conspiracy charges made against German and Austrian agents in this country.

Indicted with Buehn and appearing as defendants are Adolph Hochmeister, purchasing agent of the line, Joseph Poppenshausen, a second officer in the employ of the line, and George Kuster, its superintendent. A fifth man, Felix Seifert, an alleged supercargo of one of the supply ships, was indicted but has not been arrested.

Although many of the government's allegations have been conceded by counsel for the defense, it is expected that the trial will last a week as one hundred witnesses are under subpoena to testify for the government. Two years imprisonment and $10,000 fine on each of two indictments is the maximum penalty for the crime charged.

The prosecution is under the direction of U. S. Attorney Marshall. United States district attorney and his assistants, Roger R. Wood and John C. Knox, Jr., William Rand, Jr., counsel for Buehn concedes that four of the 15 vessels named in the indictments as supply ships were chartered as alleged, but asserts that the filling of false invoices and manifests at the customs house was not intended to defraud the United States but to deceive the enemies of Germany. The defendants aver that the violations of customs regulations were not serious offenses. In view of these concessions, it is expected that the chief points to be passed upon by Judge Harbord B. Howe, of Vermont, will be questions of law as to the jurisdiction of the United States over some of the supply steamers which are of foreign registry.

Four juries, tentative and subject to challenge, had been selected at noon. This represented half of the talesmen examined.

In nearly every case prospective jurors were of foreign birth or parentage or had sympathy with one side or the other of the warring nations of Europe. Counsel asked searching questions of every talesman to develop whether he had even the remotest personal interest in the war, particularly as to German submarine warfare. In cases where such interest was revealed, the talesman was excused. The British and French governments, their aides and staffs, J. P. Morgan, his partners and employees (J. P. Morgan & Co. are fiscal agents for the British and French governments) and the various European consuls here.

When the 1 o'clock recess was taken nine tentative jurors had been selected.

TO RUN DOWN PLOTTER

U. S. Government Asks States to Aid in Obtaining Evidence—To Employ All Resources

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The whole machinery of the United States government will be employed to run down and punish those responsible for factory explosions, intimidation of labor and other acts of violence against American industries.

This is made clear in an announcement by Attorney General Gregory, who calls upon state authorities to use equal vigor in dealing with lawlessness beyond the reach of federal statutes.

The attorney general was led to act, he says, as a result of the frequency with which acts of violence have occurred recently, adding that the situation demands vigorous action on the part of the state and federal governments.

Attention is called by Mr. Gregory to the difficulty of prosecution of crimes of violence, such as arson, malicious destruction of property, etc., under the federal criminal statutes. He says that these offenses must ordinarily be dealt with under state laws.

The lawless acts can only be suppressed, according to officials, through the co-operation of state officers and labor leaders with the federal authorities.

A. B. Bielaski, chief of the investigation department of justice, laid before Attorney General Gregory today the results of his visit to the Atlanta penitentiary, where he went to gather additional evidence from Gustav Stahl, serving a sentence in connection with passport frauds in New York.

Officials thought Stahl had knowledge of the men higher up in the conspiracy. Whether Bielaski secured additional information was not made public.

THE SPELLBINDER

When you come to the end of a perfect day,
In a fight with excitement fraught;
And the boys come round with stories
Of the votes that the day has brought.
Do you think what the end of a perfect day
Must mean to the losing heart
As his sun goes down on his swan-
like day,
And his erstwhile friends depart?

Well, this is the end of a perfect day;
Near the end of the journey, too,
And it brings a thought that is big
And strong.
We must keep every promise true.
For memory has painted each perfect
In colors that never fade.
And we find at the end of this perfect day
That we can't break a pledge we've made.

Thompson Exposes Mill Bosses

P stands for Perry and likewise for "pep," and the man who thought that Perry D. Thompson couldn't make a speech about the aforementioned "pep" received the surprise of the campaign when on Saturday night, Mr. Thompson went on the stump and told some plain facts relative to his campaign which had previously been hinted at by Jackson Palmer, but which had been doubted by some until given verification by Mr. Thompson himself.

Mr. Thompson's reference to his interview with the mill agent who is behind Mayor Murphy was the real sensational feature of the entire campaign, and yet the Courier-Citizen in a two-column article on the incident of Saturday, carefully omitted the slightest reference to the one, headline feature of the occasion.

Mr. Thompson, speaking at Bridge and Paige streets before a large audience, told of his early life and different vocations at which he had worked. He told of having even carried the milk can on his back, and of working at a saw-mill, convincing his hearers that he was not the indolent, kid-gloved candidate that some would have the public believe he was.

Then Mr. Thompson said: "Shortly before I made my announcement as a candidate for mayor, a certain mill agent, a friend of mine, called me down to his office for a talk. I went there and he asked me if I were true that I intended to run for mayor. When I told him that I would be a candidate, he said: 'Don't run this year for you will not be elected.' I asked him why he thought so, and he replied: 'Because I shall not be with you. I make the mayors in this city. I made the present mayor and am with him again. I hold the whip hand in Lowell politics and you cannot win without me. If you will keep out of the fight for two years I'll elect you two years from now. These men under me will take their oaths to support you.'"

"I told him," said Mr. Thompson, "that I didn't want his support, under such circumstances. I told him that I would run for mayor whether he liked it or not, and I am now your candidate; the candidate of all the people and not the candidate of any individual mill agent."

Mr. Thompson's remarks made a profound impression and were the talk of the town all day yesterday. It was the expressed opinion of the election dopesters that it had turned hundreds of republican votes in his direction.

Just before Mr. Thompson spoke Saturday night, Jackson Palmer had paid his respects to the same mill agent for his prominence in politics, as a Murphy promoter.

A significant result of Mr. Thompson's remarks, Saturday night, according to report, was a conference, between the mill agent referred to by Mr. Thompson and Police Messenger Pinder, one of Mayor Murphy's board of strategy, at the mill office, yesterday-afternoon, while others aver that the agent yesterday kept the telephone lines hot calling up personal friends and asking articles to support Mayor Murphy, assuring them that Mr.

Thompson had misrepresented the interview.

Thompson has the "pep" all right.

Revival of Mill Bossism

If what Mr. Thompson says about a certain mill agent in this campaign is true then we are about to have a revival of that most pernicious form of industrial slavery, known as mill bossism in politics, which all of the old time mill overseers and operatives who can recall the old conditions, will view with alarm.

It was the late General Benjamin F. Butler who did more than anyone else to drive out that old time evil when he gave the following advice to the overseers, second-hands and operatives: "Gentlemen: Listen to them and talk to them, to save your jobs, if you have to; take their money if they offer it to you, but when you go to your voting place vote right; vote as your conscience dictates; vote against these bosses who would own you, body and soul and vote, all for the pittance paid for the sweat of your brow."

Ben Butler's advice holds good today!

At City Hall Steps

Surely the forum was crowded Saturday night, the forum in this case, being the space in front of city hall, when Dr. Mignault, Daniel Cosgrove, Abel R. Campbell, Mayor Murphy, George H. Brown and Perry D. Thompson were the speakers, in the order named.

An amusing incident happened late in the evening while Mr. Brown was speaking. He was strong on endurance and armed with a roll of paper containing figures galore, he was expatiating warmly with total disregard to the light of time and the fact that Mr. Thompson was anxiously waiting for a chance to address the gathering before the crowd had departed.

An anxious spectator, presumably interested in Mr. Thompson, was the political writer of the Courier-Citizen who waited until patience ceased to be a virtue and he stepped forth and touching Mr. Brown on the shoulder, whispered that there was another candidate yet to speak.

With all the abandon of the jolly miller who lived on the river Dee, Mr. Brown replied: "I don't care for any other candidate for no other candidate cares for me," and George continued to add ad lib, perhaps, "I might say 'ad glib.'"

Dr. Mignault was the first speaker and the Courier-Citizen's writer said of him, "the doctor talks with the seriousness of the professional man," which "lets out" his own friend Mr. Thompson, the only one of the municipal candidates who is not a professional man. Dr. Mignault frequently referred to his notes and made a favorable impression. He was courteously received by all and enthusiastically by many.

His remarks in full, appear in another column.

Mr. Cosgrove appeared as a sort of "added attraction" for Abel Campbell was due to follow the doctor. Mr. Cosgrove called the Bull Moose forth from his lair and made a fine progressive party speech though its bearing on a non-partisan municipal campaign was perhaps a little vague. Still it was a speech which would call good stuff and it went well.

Mayor Murphy got in ahead of George H. Brown and repeated much of the matter he has used throughout his campaign. He made one new statement to the effect that the increase in appropriations this year was due to the dependent mothers' pension appropriation, an item on which one year ago he boasted that he did not spend all the money allowed him.

Mr. Brown spoke on a variety of subjects and a certain newspaperman.

Then Mr. Thompson came along with his little surprise.

Meanwhile in other sections of the city other speakers were making remarks before large audiences for everybody had the fever and all were out to hear the talk. Jackson Palmer went all over the city, while Mayor Murphy was in Pawtucketville and other places.

James F. Miskella was quite busy and spoke before large audiences in various sections of the city. Mr. Miskella attacked the administration for introducing contract labor to Lowell. Several candidates, notably Joseph Stullin, James H. Walker and James L. Donnelly spoke before the clubs and at indoor meetings.

Former Mayor O'Donnell was present at about all of the outdoor meetings but refrained from speaking, as he desired to preserve his voice for the finale tonight and didn't care to take a chance in the dampness that prevailed.

Yesterday indoor meetings were held all over the city, and Frank Warnock, the labor man among the candidates held a well attended and enthusiastic rally in Labor hall in Middle street at which several men well known in business and labor circles made addresses in his behalf.

Dare Not Print the Matter

Not all the voters of the city understand that candidates can make false statements and false charges on the stump that no newspaper dare print without being liable for civil or criminal action in the courts. It is supposed by some that a newspaper is privileged to print anything a candidate may say regardless of whether it is true or false. That is not so.

If a candidate makes false charges and a newspaper prints them, the paper and not the candidate is then responsible for giving the charges publicity.

The voters should take notice that no Lowell newspaper dared to print the vile stuff that Mayor Murphy has been giving out from the stump in this campaign. Instead of talking of the city's business he is endeavoring to asperse the private character of honorable and decent men who happen to be his opponents and of some men who are not.

If the charges that Mayor Murphy is making on the stump had any foundation in truth does anybody suppose the Lowell Sun's Opinion of Commissioner Carmichael June 23, 1915.

The following is the editorial:

COM. CARMICHAEL'S STAND

It is a regrettable fact that in every city there is found an element that declares in favor of any scheme to take money from the public treasury regardless of the interests of the taxpayers or the good of the city as a whole. Moreover there are people in different parts of the city so unreasonable that they threaten to quit their jobs with defeat at the first opportunity if he does not violate his oath of office and vote for a project which he believes to be unfair and an outrage upon the taxpayers as a whole.

Something of this kind happened at the large conference on Monday when Commissioner Carmichael met the threats of the Pawtucketville residents by this bold statement: "I do not care what the money allowed him to spend for the best interests of the city and for the best interests of the city."

The Sun which has frequently criticized Col. Carmichael in the past takes pleasure in commenting him upon this stand in the line of the menacing element that apparently thinks public officials should disregard business methods and blindly go on the question of expending a large amount of money for a bridge at Pawtucketville. Even newspapers perhaps are more apt to condemn the had than to commend the good; but this assertion of his official conviction of right and duty by Commissioner Carmichael is an example so rare in the municipal council that it should not go unnoticed.

It was a just protest against what apparently is a very loose method of expending the city's money and one that may result in spending the cost of a first class bridge for one that is of the second or third class. The manner in which the municipality took up an engineer who came after the job, his fixing the cost of the bridge at $50,000 before any plans or specifications were provided and even its plan of handling the labor that would remove this limit, were all irregular, unbusinesslike and against the city's interests. Under such circumstances Commissioner Carmichael's protest and his motion to rescind the action taken and start anew, were all in the line of duty and of upright business methods. That is why the commissioner's stand is to be appreciated.

But while the money will be a fearless official who does his duty courageously, the taxpayers whose interests are safeguarded are not always ready to appreciate the action of the man who stands by them.

This is not the only occasion on which Commissioner Carmichael has held out for economical business methods in the face of unjust criticism. He did the same in the construction of the filtration plant which if built on the loose business methods by which it is proposed to build the bridge, would have cost perhaps one-third more than it did.

The commissioner is one of the members of the municipal council who will probably come before the voters in the fall and it remains to be seen whether the taxpayers will stand by the man who stood fearlessly for the city's interests or for the officials who surrendered money to the contracting parties who declared absolutely against contract work and voted to bring in a Springfield party to build a bridge without competition and without due safeguards for the interests of the city.

pose the newspapers which are openly backing his candidacy would hesitate to print them? Have they done so? No. That fact alone proves that they dare not because the charges he makes are false; but in his characteristic way he takes advantage of the latitude allowed to the stump speaker in political campaigns.

Again They Rescind

The Spellbinder on Saturday invited Mayor Murphy or his supporters to produce the list of the 7000 voters who petitioned Mayor Murphy to be a candidate again, agreeing to publish the complete list free of charge. Up to that time the Murphy supporters had claimed and repeated that the 7000 were there, without a doubt. But now comes the Courier-Citizen with the following statement:

"Naturally, the mayor, being the man who holds the desired job, is under the most general attack in the campaign; but curiously enough he has nothing to do with certain issues that are proving his obstacles. It is charged against him that he claimed 7000 names on the petition that asked him to reconsider his decision not to run for a second term, whereas only a few hundred signatures were on the paper."

"The facts, as known to newspapermen, are that the information was given by one of the speakers at the mayor's summer meeting, that there were 7000 signatures, and the figures were printed in good faith. They never came from the mayor himself. He never made any claim as to the number. As a matter of fact, there were not 7000."

Now The Sun will repeat its challenge in the case of the Murphy petition, and if a petition with 1000 names of legal voters placed there before that "surprise party" was held is produced it will print the list free of charge.

But in what a fine position the Courier-Citizen places the well known gentlemen who sat on the platform at the surprise party and vouched for the 7000 names.

Coddling to the Firemen

Some of the candidates and their friends are doing all kinds of coddling to the firemen, seeking their support. Mayor Murphy's press agent, who has given columns per week to knocking the one-day-off-in-five proposition, completely forgot his opposition to the question and didn't give it a line yesterday.

terday, having been called off, temporarily, it is assumed, by the mayor. Meanwhile, health department employees and others interested in Mayor Murphy made the rounds of the firehouse, calling attention to the fact that the press agent had let up and asking the firemen's support in return. But the firemen, as they announced in their advertisement of Saturday, are strictly neutral, for they have only one matter on which they are a unit and that is the one-day-off-in-five proposition in which all of them are deeply interested. They want the public to know that they are not with nor against any particular candidate nor any particular set of candidates.

Commissioner Morse Vexed

Commissioner Morse is unduly vexed at The Spellbinder and the latter's utterances and the fault seems to be that Mr. Morse takes what is spoken in just at its literal meaning and then takes other things wrongly. For instance The Spellbinder once when in merry mood waxed melodious and sang a little song:

"It's a long way to Arizona, but my heart's right there."

And Charlie took its literal meaning and fervently declared in a speech a few evenings ago that The Spellbinder was, er, well, mistaken; that his heart is in Lowell and has been for years and years.

The Spellbinder said a few days ago: "The word has been passed around in the street and sewer departments to vote for Murphy and Morse" and again Charlie takes it up wrong and defies The Spellbinder to prove that he ever asked the men of his department to vote for Murphy and himself.

Of course he didn't and The Spellbinder didn't say that he did. He doesn't have to when Brother Bill and other friends are on hand to do it for him. Commissioner Morse has not asked his employees to bullet for him and Mayor Murphy set that right. But the word has been passed around, tout le monde.

Charlie shouldn't get me wrong. I suppose if I were to say that one night last week Commissioner Morse was following the Ponies, he'd immediately accuse me of calling him a gambler, or a sparrow-man, when I simply mean that he went over to a meeting of the social club of that name and made a good speech.

It's so discouraging to be misunderstood.

"Dies Irae, Dies Illa"

The employees of the city who hold their jobs by virtue of the civil service law should remember that under that law they are barred from active personal participation in politics, and that evidence of such activity is sufficient for their removal. Therefore it behooves those who persist in playing politics while working under the civil service law to make sure they are playing for a winner, for otherwise they are carefully reminded of the above title of the old Latin hymn.

Latest Murphy Canard

The Murphy supporters were out with an 11th hour canard yesterday to the effect that Former Mayor O'Donnell had given up speaking and was throwing his support to Perry D. Thompson. The canard was anticipated, but the evidence of its malicious untruthfulness was made plain today when the former mayor addressed a big gathering at the Cartridge shop, and is advertised to make a number of speeches tonight. O'Donnell is very much in the contest and is on everybody's slate as one of the winners.

The Church Vote

I don't know just what is meant by the church vote, nor what its size may be, for we all go to one church or another, regardless of politics. But it seems that there's a dispute on between the adherents of Mayor Murphy and Dr. Mignault as to which of the two is to get the church vote, so-called. Mayor Murphy's adherents base their claim presumably on the fact that his Honor is a member of the Young Men's Christian association, though it's the first time in history that that worthy organization has been connected with politics.

Perry Repeated His Statement

Quite a crowd turned out at the Saco-Lovell shop gate this noon when James F. Miskella and Perry D. Thompson split half an hour between them. Mr. Miskella speaking first. The latter stated that although he had served seven years at city hall he had never held a salaried office.

Mr. Thompson waxed eloquent over the danger of mill bossism in Lowell as given above, and he showed, in reply to Jackson Palmer's claim of a few days ago that his son had attended the kindergarten, primary and grammar public schools until he was withdrawn from school on account of ill-health and is now at a school in the country for the benefit of his health.

CAPABLE and EFFICIENT

Lack of BUSINESS METHODS at City Hall is evident. The Industrial Exposition demonstrated these facts: The need of a public hall. That the products of Lowell are equal to any made in the world and are made by the best people in the world. The people of Lowell are deserving of the best municipal improvements.

The extension of Dummer street on a referendum vote would be defeated by a large majority and other improvements would be favored which would be of more benefit to the people at large.

Successful business training is an asset and but few men under the new charter have served and demonstrated their real worth.

Select a man with 20 years of business training who has made a success of his own business.

JOSEPH MULLIN FOR ALDERMAN

A man who believes in Lowell and also in giving the city every opportunity to advance consistent with modern ideas.

JOSEPH MULLIN, 23 Burt Street.

TO THE VOTERS OF LOWELL

SIRS: If I am elected mayor I will make an honest effort to do my duty unhampered by any alliances, agreements or pledges except those made openly to the public.

I will hold the heads of my departments responsible for the duty imposed upon them and the laws will be enforced impartially with the aim of extending equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

I Will Not Be a Candidate For a Second Term

Because I realize one object of the present charter was to do away with the re-election of mayors and because I believe if unhampered with plans and labor necessary to bring about a continuation of two additional years in office I can perform my official duties to better advantage, and because I purpose not only to go into office free of any ties and personal obligations but I desire to remain so during my entire term. Under such conditions there should be no reason why, if elected, I cannot leave office with as much respect as I enter it, and this is my greatest ambition.

Hoping that you will see your way clear to vote for me Tuesday, Dec. 9th, I am

Gratefully yours,

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WANTS MORE MONEY

Mayor Murphy stated today that more money would be required to carry the board of health through the year. The amount allowed for contagious diseases, he said, was not sufficient and money for that purpose will have to be transferred from some other appropriation. The mayor thinks that the amount required will be about $2700, but he says he is not sure about it. Up to Nov. 1 the sum of $8,468.35 was spent for contagious diseases as against $7,776.50 for the whole of last year.

SUPERIOR COURT CASES

Two B. & M. Suits on Trial—List of the Divorces Granted by Judge Hardy

At the opening of this morning's session of the superior civil court, a jury was empaneled in the case of William F. Walte, adm., of Somerville vs. the Boston & Maine railroad, an action to recover for the death of his wife, Charlotte E. Walte, who was killed on a railroad crossing at Somerville by a train on Oct. 9, 1914.

The case of Cecil P. Dodge vs. B. & M. Railroad Co. was called on for trial this morning. The case is an action to recover for alleged injuries received while a passenger on one of the trains of the company between Lowell and Boston, which went to trial Friday was resumed this forenoon, Justice Keating presiding.

Some eight or ten witnesses were sworn in for the defense and the first called was Martin Scott, an engineer in the employ of the Merrimack Chemical Co., who testified to having been in the employ of the company for about five years. He told of a passenger train coming to a stop near his engine at about 8 p. m., and said later he was called to haul a couple of box cars owned by the Chemical company, and which had been left on the switch.

Engineer Bascom, in the employ of the Boston & Maine, and who was in charge of the train which figured in the accident, testified that on the night of the accident he was on duty and approached a spot near the plant of the Chemical company, the engine struck something which drew up into the air, and breaking through the board at the lower end of the window of the engine, injured his leg. He said at that time he was conducting the train at a speed of between 35 and 60 miles an hour.

George J. Callahan in charge of the signal station of the Merrimack Chemical Co. at the Lowell station, testified that the method used in protecting the main lines of railroad companies, when his company is using them in shifting its cars. He said at first the operator of the Chemical Co. calls the train dispatcher of the B. & M. and when permission is granted, he uses the main line a flagman and other signal men are placed at their respective posts.

Dr. Francis Mahoney of this city, testifying for the defense, said he had examined the arm of Mr. Dodge and failed to find any injury.

In cross-examination he said there might have been a possibility that Mr. Dodge was injured.

At the opening of this afternoon's session, presented his argument in the course of which he said if Mr. Dodge was injured, the blame of the accident rests upon the Merrimack Chemical Co.

Mr. Tierney, counsel for the plaintiff, said the money paid by the Merrimack Chemical Co. to Mr. Dodge should not be considered in this case. He said the B. & M. was notified of the accident by Mr. Dodge's father.

Then continued Mr. Tierney "the railroad got busy and later representatives of the Merrimack Chemical Co. came to Lowell and after paying Mr. Dodge a certain sum of money, had him sign a release, but the said release did not nor does not release the B. & M. The Merrimack Chemical Co. was not notified by Mr. Dodge, but by the railroad."

Mr. Tierney said the plaintiff has proven that an accident occurred, but the railroad has not yet produced any proof as to the cause of the accident. At 3:30 o'clock the judge charged

MRS. BURNS, ACCUSED OF MURDER, BREAKS DOWN

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 22.—In the midst of her own testimony today Mrs. Mary A. Burns, on trial here for the alleged murder of her husband, Frank A. Burns, by poison, broke down and the session was temporarily adjourned.

Mrs. Burns had been on the stand half an hour and had gone over the events in her life from the time she and Burns were married until the Sunday two days before his death at Nottingham, when she collapsed. She told of her life at Webster, Mass., and at Laconia, N. H., and of purchasing a quantity of cyanide of potassium with the intention of taking her own life. She testified that she and her husband arrived at Nottingham from Manchester on Saturday previous to his death and that the next morning, Burns went out of the house to look after the horses.

"As he came back," Mrs. Burns stated, "I met him at the door and he said, 'Why didn't you come and meet me, little girl, as you always did?' I said that I wasn't feeling well. Then he said 'Have you got another of your blue spells?'"

At this point Mrs. Burns paused and the tears rolled down her cheeks. Col. Bartlett, her counsel, rushed forward with a glass of water and a moment later she was assisted to a side room. Ten witnesses preceded Mrs. Burns on the witness stand today. Frank Watson, a farmer of Nottingham, declared that Mrs. Burns one day, a month before the death of her husband, running about the street without her hat. George Lepandre, proprietor of the hotel in Webster where Mr. and Mrs. Burns lived for a short time, stated that Mrs. Burns told him two women in the hotel were making love to her husband. Lepandre said that he investigated and found Burns was in another part of the hotel and that the two women had not been near him.

Warren N. Gerrish of Nottingham, said that Mrs. Burns met him one day and asked him if he had seen her husband with a woman. He told her he had not.

Rev. Percy W. Caswell, pastor of the Court Street Christian church of this city, said that he visited Mrs. Burns soon after her arrest and tried to talk with her but was unable to hold her attention. She seemed dazed, he said. In March, three months after the arrest, he found her much improved.

The witnesses were asked few questions by the prosecution.

Mrs. Burns Recovered
Mrs. Burns recovered in a few minutes. Resuming her testimony she told of mixing a quantity of poison with some gin. She said the night before her husband died she told him she could not live in Nottingham any longer and that if she did she would kill herself. They sat up until 9 o'clock and before he turned out the light, she said, she took a drink.

Mrs. Burns said she was awakened the next morning when her husband was moving about the room, and remembered seeing him take another drink. She dozed off she testified and then was conscious of his sitting down heavily on the bed. When she jumped out and ran around the foot of the bed to him she declared he said "Oh May."

At this point Mrs. Burns broke down for a second time and a recess was taken until this afternoon.

"I have conducted my own business with success for 25 years. I can do so with the city's business," Joseph Mullin, 23 Burt street—Adv.

ABSOLUTELY QUALIFIED FOR A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

IT HAS been rumored that my campaign expenses, advertising, etc., are being paid by a local corporation and that I have close affiliation with the same. As I have stated on the stump I am in this fight absolutely alone—prepared and able to pay my own expenses with my own money, asking favors of no corporation or special class, desiring and requiring only the moral support and assistance of the voters of the city of Lowell.

A CANDIDATE who can give to the citizens of Lowell his time and an experience of years of training in handling business and social propositions which must inevitably come to the office of Mayor.

A CANDIDATE who is in a position to surround himself with men whose advice in all municipal affairs will be of inestimable value to the city.

A CANDIDATE with an enviable record behind him for unswerving honesty and integrity, who as a member of the School Board demanded merit and consistency in every public act.

PROBLEM OF WORLD PEACE

Interesting Discussion at Grace Church Forum on How to Preserve International Peace

At the Public Forum in Grace church, Sunday night, there were discussed questions having to do with the defense of the United States. The speakers were Walter A. Greene of the Boston Journal and George E. Nesmyth of the World Peace Foundation. The subject was, "What is the best means of defense for the United States?" The answer, "An increased army and navy," was discussed by Mr. Greene, and the second answer, "A league to enforce peace," was handled by Mr. Nesmyth.

Mr. Greene was the first speaker. He said the foolish idea that once prevailed to the effect that if war came the Yankees could lick the world, has been relegated to the backwoods. He said that when threatened by war there are three ways open to every nation. First, non-resistance; second, reliance upon arbitration and international law; third, the rather old-fashioned one of fighting. He said

PURE RICH BLOOD PREVENTS DISEASE

Bad blood is responsible for more ailments than anything else. It causes catarrh, dyspepsia, rheumatism, weak, tired, languid feelings and worse troubles.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been wonderfully successful in purifying and enriching the blood, removing scrofula and other humors, and building up the whole system. Take it—give it to all the family so as to avoid illness. Get it today.

ties," he said, "they are, so far as they go, excellent; but any treaty of that sort amounts to practically no more than a written notice to the other nation that at a certain point you will begin to fight. If you do not do so before, as to the plan, providing for a year's cooling off; it is excellent with one exception: that it would be difficult in practice to decide at what point notice should be given to the other nation, that the year's wait was to be begun. The only protection at present for treaties, based on the relation of one nation to another his international law.

"The measure of our military preparedness should be the measure of our political intentions. The citizens of the country must decide what the political intentions are, and then it will be for the military experts to tell the laity how to carry out those intentions. Are we to maintain the policy of the open door in the far east? What are we to do as to Hawaii and the Philippines? What are we going to do in Alaska, and with the Panama canal, and lastly, and most seriously, what are we going to do with the Monroe Doctrine? If we are content to give up our splendid work in Cuba, if we are content to surrender what we have done for western hemisphere in a protective way or our good work in the Philippines, or to surrender Alaska, then consider that all we need is a purely defensive force in America.

"To win any war in these days, a country must mobilize morally, intellectually, spiritually, economically, industrially. It is not merely a question of armaments. It is the present duty of this nation to consider well whether it intends to take its position among the nations of the world as a great power. We should fight any such thing as a large professional army; but we should adopt some such plan as that of the continental army, which will now shortly be before congress. We should train our young men, so that there will be a constant flux of men receiving and returning to civil life. We should mobilize our forces and remove our munitions plants from proximity to the sea.

Militarism does not consist in knowing how to fight. We call Germany militaristic, but by the same token we might as well call England navalistic, or France militaristic. We must translate into our government some of the efficiency that we have only in our business. The patriotism of this country is of a paper variety. We have got to cultivate a national sense. We lack our sense of individual responsibility and our sense of collective responsibility to the group. We are individualists; we have not got the community sense. The advantage of team play that Harvard had over Yale is precisely the advantage that Germany has over the allies today.

"It is probable that non-resistance neither prevents war nor leads to it. In the hands of a government which is an anarchy or a theocracy, a large army is a danger; but in the hands of a government of the people by the people such an armament is not a danger. In the last analysis, war or not war is in the political intention of the people."

Mr. Nesmyth's intention

"I deny," said Mr. Nesmyth, "that the only alternative of war is non-resistance. I contend that war is due to international anarchy. The plan that I propose is a league to enforce peace, by replacing a condition of anarchy by a condition of justice and law. Our plan calls for the erection of an international court of justice, and an international council of investigation and conciliation. All the nations entering the league shall make an agreement that they shall not declare war or begin hostilities until they have submitted their case to a court of justice; and non-justiciable questions shall be submitted to a council for recommendation as to what solution seems just and equitable. If, after that committee has made its report, the nation desires to go to war, all right; but history shows that invariably the decision has been accepted.

"The court also would issue an injunction against nations doing such illegal things as blowing up passenger vessels or blockading neutral commerce. There are tremendous economic pressures that can be applied to prevent any nation from taking advantage of the time necessary to secure a just decision. We do not need to go the full length of an international police force at present. The first nation which declares war without submitting its dispute to a court or council will thereby declare war upon the whole world.

"I agree that our Monroe doctrine is a danger to America; but I think we should go about that with a constructive program. In order to obtain all the good that the Monroe doctrine is capable of and at the same time eliminate from it these dangerous aspects, we should either make it a Pan-American doctrine, asking the South American countries to join with us in enforcing it, which takes the imperialistic sting out of it, or I would make it not only a Pan-American doctrine, but a world doctrine. Any nation that refuses to sign that guaranty would immediately show its aggressive intentions. If, on the other hand, they do all join in neutralizing those countries and guaranteeing their integrity, we shall have enormously increased the protective side of the Monroe doctrine and taken out of it completely the imperialistic side. And so with the Philippines.

"You will say the neutrality of Belgium was guaranteed, and it did not hold. In the first place, the Philippines are not a highway between two nations; and second, a guaranty by all the nations of the integrity and independence of a country is a different thing from a guaranty by three nations ranged on opposing sides.

"I would go further than that, and say that we are not just to the Japanese. They are a friendly nation, but as Mr. Greene very well says, there are elements of danger in that situation. There are limits beyond which we cannot continue to insult them and treat them as an inferior race, without arraying them on the side of any possible enemies that we may have."

enough food to last him until she returned from her friends.

The note did not say where she was going and it was not until Mrs. Bishop returned to her home last night that the police learned where she had gone. Mrs. Bishop was overcome when told of her husband's death. With the exception of the constable's badge and the revolver holster, the authorities have no clues to work on.

Thomas S. MacArthur, an insurance agent who boarded at the Bishop home, is being detained by the police. He told the officers that he was in his room all Saturday night, but had heard no revolver shots or noise of a struggle.

Joseph A. Lannie, a conductor, who also boarded with the Bishops, occupied the room across the hall from the sitting room. He heard no evidence of a struggle. Lannie is also being detained.

Mrs. W. S. Streker, wife of Dr. Streker, was awakened about 4 o'clock yesterday morning by noises being made on the floor above her bedroom. After hearing a sound that resembled the falling of a heavy body to the floor she awakened her husband and both of them heard for several seconds light groans. Neither Dr. Streker nor his wife thought anything about the noises until yesterday afternoon, when the body of the murdered man was discovered.

Bishop was formerly employed as steward at Sockanosset school, a state institution. He was 33 years of age.

Joseph Mullin if nominated will be elected. His record is good. Joseph McCusker, 62 Lundberg street.—Adv.

MAN MURDERED

Constable's Badge Left Behind by Providence Motorman's Slayer

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 22.—Frederick H. Bishop, a motorman employed by the Rhode Island company, was found murdered in the sitting room of his apartment on Westminster street here yesterday afternoon. About his head were cuts made by a blunt instrument, and in his body were three bullet wounds.

The police are holding two men, pending an investigation.

On the floor of a room adjoining that in which the murdered man was discovered was found a regulation police constable's badge of the city of Providence and an empty revolver holster.

Leah Bishop, wife of the murdered man, returned last night from a visit to friends in Pawtucket and informed the police that she had never seen the constable's badge or the revolver holster before. She said that her husband had never owned either a badge or a holster.

The crime was discovered early yesterday afternoon. A maid employed in the house noticed, while passing down the hallway, that Bishop's clothing was scattered about the floor and asked Dr. W. S. Streker, who lives on the first floor of the house to investigate.

Bishop was found badly mutilated, lying on the floor of the sitting room. He had on a shirt which bore evidence of a struggle as did the room in which the body was found. On a table, but a few feet from the body, was a note written by Mrs. Bishop in which she had told her husband that she was going away and that she had cooked

Testimony of Alleged Corruption of Legislature in Connection With B. & M. Deal Ruled Out

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Testimony of alleged corruption of the Massachusetts legislature by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in connection with the legislation by which it was enabled to retain control of the Boston & Maine railroad in 1905 was ruled as inadmissible by Judge Hunt today at the trial of the 11 former directors of the road on the charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

Judge Hunt held that such testimony was collateral and on a subject not charged in the indictment as one of the alleged means used by the defendants in carrying out their alleged conspiracy to monopolize the commerce of New England.

The ruling was delivered after the defense had objected to questions which R. I. Batts, attorney for the government put to Charles S. McLean, Batts wanted to know who the New Haven's legislative agent was during the 58th session of the legislature which was during the time the New Haven had been restrained for one year by the passage of the so-called Cole bill from voting its newly acquired majority stock in the Boston & Maine.

"I am not familiar," said the court, "with the evidence that the government expects to present, but as a substantive proposition evidence that the defendants intended to rely upon corrupt acts is not admissible. It opens up a collateral matter which in itself may be a criminal matter. We cannot go into a collateral matter, especially if it is one from which unfavorable inferences would be asked to be drawn."

There may arise a feeling of resentment, as it were, and the mind may be easily diverted to the collateral matter concerning which there is no direct charge involved. There is nothing within the purview of the indictment charged broad, substantive means to corrupt legislation."

Judge Hunt added that there was no objection to an inquiry into legislative matters so long as they could be shown to be historically connected with the acquisition of the Boston & Maine but not as carrying the imputation of improper methods.

The government has subpoenaed several witnesses who were expected to testify as to alleged "lobbying" in the legislature.

This testimony it is now thought, will either be ruled out or restricted under the court's ruling.

YOUR BRONCHIAL TUBES

When a cold settles in the bronchial tubes, with that weakening, tickling cough, immediate treatment is very important. The breath seems shorter because of mucous obstructions; usually fever is present, your head jars with every cough and your chest may ache. This is no time for experimenting or delay—you must get Scott's Emulsion at once to drive out the cold which started the trouble, and it will check the cough by aiding the healing process of the enfeebled membranes.

If you have any symptoms of bronchitis, or even a stubborn cold, always remember that Scott's Emulsion has been relieving this trouble for forty years. It is free from alcohol or drugs. Refuse substitutes.

cessions if she enters the war on the side of the central powers.

Russian Attack Repulsed

In the Dvinsk region in Russia Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops repulsed a Russian attack, apparently not made in strong force.

Nether Berlin nor Paris reports infantry activity on the Franco-Belgian front. The German war office, however, mentions "lively activity" of the French artillery between the Meuse and the Moselle in the Champagne and near Lunville.

British Fleet in Baltic

Copenhagen hears that a large flotilla of British submarines from 10 to 25 of them—recently has passed into the Baltic, being conveyed to the Cattegat by a powerful squadron and to the sound leading into the Baltic by the destroyers. Presumably this is a new flotilla, reinforcing the units which recently have been operating with considerable effect in Baltic waters.

Italian Advance

Important progress for the Italians on the Isonzo front in their stubborn struggle for Gorizia is announced by Rome. Substantial gains are reported on the heights northwest of the city, the ground taken being held despite desperate counter attacks by the Austrians.

Further advances also are reported by the Italians on the Carso plateau, the advantage recently gained on Monte San Michele having been immediately followed up. The Austrians were dislodged from trench after trench in this region, it is declared.

Important Serbian Victory

News in confirmation of the report that the Serbians have won an important victory over the Bulgarians near Leskovats on the main line railroad south of Nish, comes from the Serbian minister at Athens, a Paris despatch states.

Greece Hedges Agreement

Notwithstanding the situation created by the announcement that a commercial blockade of Greece by the entente powers has been instituted, Athens despatch received by a Paris newspaper declares the general feeling in Greece is that serious consequences will be avoided. London has the report that a basis of agreement satisfactory to the allies regarding possible treatment by Greece of the troops of the former in Macedonia already has been reached.

British Steamers Sunk

Sinking of the British steamers Italmahire of 4120 tons and the Morgan of 1905 tons, presumably by submarine attack, is announced in London.

IMMEDIATE DECLARATION FROM GREECE EXPECTED IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 22, 12.23 p. m.—The rumour of last week that the entente allies had determined to compel Greece to repudiate all hints that she might interfere with the passage of allied troops across her territory have been substantiated by the inauguration of a blockade. This measure is expected to elicit an immediate declaration from the Greek government, defining its intention with ambiguity.

Some despatches from Athens go so far as to say this already has been attained as a result of Earl Kitchener's conference with King Constantine and that the earl received assurances of a satisfactory nature. The British government, however, has not yet indicated that Greece has complied with the demands of the allies.

Greece is described as prey of conflicting emotions, fear of Germany, whose military successes have brought the Balkan war theatre nearer and her natural sympathy for the cause of the allies, detaching opposite paths out of her present difficult neutrality. Some Greek newspapers regard the blockade of Greece as a violation of international law. It has created a profound impression, upon which immediate action is predicted.

For the time being military operations in southern Serbia have been almost suspended. This is regarded in England as an encouraging sign for the Serbians and their allies. In view of the fact that a few days ago a Hungarian advance from Priep to Monastir appeared certain.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL

The corner stone of the new high school at Billerica was laid this afternoon with appropriate exercises. The pupils who are to occupy the building when completed, participated and each carried a brick which was laid near the corner stone. There was a large attendance of parents and friends of the pupils present to view the exercises which were unusually interesting. At the last annual town meeting the sum of $2000 was voted for a new high school and the construction work is now progressing rapidly. The site is located on Main street, almost opposite the high school building.

MERCHANT SENTENCED

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 22.—Rhody Merchant, who has been awaiting trial for the murder of Edward A. Willard, superintendent of the Strafford county farm, on July 8, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the second degree today and was sentenced to not less than 20 nor more than 30 years in state prison.

Merchant was sent to the county farm as a prisoner and after his discharge was made freeman at the farm. He became involved in a quarrel with the engineer on the night of July 8 and when Superintendent Willard attempted to separate the men, Merchant shot Mr. Willard in the stomach.

VICTORY FOR ITALIANS

IMPORTANT ADVANCE ON ISONZO FRONT, ESPECIALLY IN GORIZIA HEIGHTS

ROME, Nov. 21, via Paris, Nov. 22. 3.20 a. m.—Italian troops have made an important advance on the Isonzo front especially on the heights northwest of Gorizia, according to an official statement issued today at the headquarters of the general staff. The ground gained was retained, it is claimed, in spite of vigorous Austrian counter attacks.

The text of the communication follows: "Yesterday was marked by an important success for our arms along the Isonzo front, especially on the heights northwest of Gorizia. We began the action at night by making, with great bravery, numerous breaches in very extensive barbed wire entanglements, defending remarkably strong enemy entrenchments. At dawn our infantry, adequately supported by artillery, attacked the village of Oslavia and the heights to the northeast and southwest of the country lying across the route from San Floriano to Gorizia.

The enemy offered an extremely obstinate resistance, but finally was driven back by the impetuosity of our attack. He fled leaving his trenches full of dead. We took 450 prisoners, many of whom were officers. Successful violent attacks by the Austrians, advancing with shouts of "Savola" for the purpose of deceiving our troops, all were repulsed with irresistible energy. On the heights of Podgora and Calvario, south of Oslavia, thanks to an admirable effort carried out under a formidable artillery fire our troops took by main force two more lines of trenches and occupied almost the entire length of the summit.

"On the Carso plateau we continued

our advance along the northern slopes of Monte San Michele and southwest of San Martino, where we dislodged the enemy from trench after trench making numerous prisoners.

"Enemy aeroplanes threw bombs yesterday on Schio (15 miles northwest of Gorizia) wounding slightly eight soldiers. One of our air squadrons under highly unfavorable atmospheric conditions caused by high wind, renewed the raid on the enemy aviation camp at Assevlaza on which more than 1000 hand grenades were dropped. Our aeroplanes returned undamaged."

REPORT RUSSIANS DEFEATED

BERLIN, Nov. 22, via London.—Little activity on either the Russian front or that in France and Belgium is reported by German army headquarters in today's official statement.

It is announced that the Russians were driven back when they made an advance near Iloukai in the Dvinsk region.

BRITISH FLEET SIGHTED

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 22, via London.—The passage of a large flotilla of British submarines, variously estimated at from 10 to 25, into the Baltic is given here as an explanation of the recent naval activity in the Cattegat, where both German and British destroyer flotillas have been sighted.

According to current reports, a powerful British squadron conveyed the submarines to the entrance of the Cattegat at the Skaw, the northernmost point of the Jutland coast. The line ships stopped there, while the destroyers conveyed the submarines as far as Eilshore, at the narrowest part of the sound, whence the submarines alone proceeded into the Baltic.

THEIR 28TH YEAR

Mathew T. I. of Billerica
Celebrated Anniversary
Saturday

The 28th anniversary of the Institution of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society of North Billerica was appropriately commemorated in Thomas Talbot Memorial hall Saturday evening. About 250 members, friends and invited guests assembled and enjoyed an elaborate banquet, followed by speaking and dancing. Each year this society observes its birthday in a fitting manner but the large attendance and the splendid entertainment afforded on Saturday made the event one of the most successful in the annals of the society.

At 7 o'clock the members gathered around the festive board and enjoyed the menu provided by a well known caterer. After the repast, F. A. Linnahan, president of the society, who performed the duties of toastmaster in a very efficient manner, extended a cordial welcome to all present. During the course of his remarks he paid a glowing tribute to his fellow members and the women of the town for assisting in the work of the society.

Rev. D. J. Murphy, spiritual director of the society, gave a brief but stirring address, speaking of the purpose of the society, the vast amount of work that it has done, and what it should plan to do in the future. He complimented the officers and members for the interest they have taken in their society's progress, and urged them to continue their efforts with even greater enthusiasm and they would soon have a bigger and stronger society with which to carry on the temperance work.

Mr. James O'Sullivan

A ringing talk was delivered by James O'Sullivan of this city, one of the founders of the society, who pleases the audience each year with an interesting and humorous address. Mr. O'Sullivan briefly reviewed the early days of temperance work in Billerica when he and a few other men assisted in the organization of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence society. He mentioned the progress of the society and said that today it is one of the strongest of its kind in this vicinity. The speaker also referred to the work being done by the Federation of Catholic churches in this state.

Edward F. Slattery, probation officer of the local police court, commonly known as the "Father of the Society," was next introduced by Toastmaster Linnahan. Mr. Slattery spoke of the conditions in Billerica before the formation of the society, referring to his first visits to the town and the small meetings held in the town hall. He told of the good work that was accomplished in those days, and said it had continued right up till today and hoped that it would continue in the future. Mr. Slattery told of his great experience with temperate men, the need of societies like the one which he helped to start and urged the members to try and double their membership. Mr. Slattery was accorded a high ovation at the conclusion of his remarks.

The last speaker was President John J. Shea of the Lowell Y.M.C.A., who referred to his relations with the North Billerica organization in the past and at the present.

Among the guests present were: Rev. David J. Murphy, Edward F. Slattery, James O'Sullivan, John J. Shea, B. W. Kearney and the following members of the "Old Timers": Mrs. John R. Conway, Mrs. Elizabeth Reilly, Mrs. Thomas F. Sheridan, Miss Hannah Collins, Mrs. Katherine Stewart, Mrs. Thomas Callahan, Miss Nellie Cowdrey, Miss Margaret Ready, Mrs. Dennis J. Dewire, Mrs. James Bradley and Mrs. P. J. Mahoney.

Following the speaking the gathering assembled to the main hall where dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock under the direction of the following committee: J. A. Linnahan, general manager; J. F. Barton, assistant general manager; Daniel McSwaney, floor director; C. J. Deleahanty, chief of the refreshment committee; William Taylor, chairman of the reception committee.

The anniversary committee was as follows: J. A. Linnahan, James P. Condon, Frank McNulty, John E. Welch, John J. Lyons, Richard Condon, Louis J. Mahoney, Joseph Mahan, Joseph O'Brien, John Reardon, Fred Reardon, John McNulty, C. J. Deleahanty, William Taylor, Fred Gannon, Charles Hayes, James F. Barton, Arthur Mahoney, Thomas Riley, Raymond Morris, George Ennon, Thomas Mackey.

The present officers of the society are J. A. Linnahan, president; J. A. Barton, vice president; J. J. Lyons, treasurer; L. J. Mahoney, financial secretary; Rev. D. J. Murphy, spiritual director.

A brief history of the society as given in the anniversary program is as follows: The Father Mathew Total Abstinence society of North Billerica, was organized November 1, 1857. Previous to the forming of this society, the town of Billerica had about as unsavory a reputation with reference to temperance as any community in which there is no aid to combat the evil. To Edward F. Slattery of Lowell can truly be given the distinction of organizing the society. Mr. Slattery is known as a "father of the society."

Another man whom it would be an injustice to omit in speaking of those who interested themselves in the early work of the society, and who helped it to successfully started, was Mr. P. F. Sullivan, president of the Bay State Street Railway company. Mr. Sullivan assisted in the plans of the society and also contributed largely.

from the Catholic women of the town, and they were requested to attend a special meeting. During the session a committee of seven women was named to act with the committee of the society. They were Misses Nellie Cowdrey, Ella Conway, Mary Crawford, Agnes McMahon, Nellie Mahoney, Mary A. Mahoney and Mary McMilligan. They formed a ladies' auxiliary and aided the society in conducting fair entertainments and social events, and the success of the society is due in no small measure to their efficient cooperation.

A public subscription was started to secure money for a new building, and large sums were received from citizens of the town. Substantial donations were made by Talbot heirs, Faulkner Mrs. Co., Frederic S. Clark, Mrs. Isabelle Talbot, George M. Preston, Julian Talbot, Thomas Talbot, J. D. Gould, Mrs. Harriet Talbot, the Oblate fathers, Mrs. Joshua Bennett and others. The new building was dedicated on Feb. 17, 1880, and the first regular meeting took place in the new hall Feb. 18, 1880. The society was incorporated June 11, 1883.

The past presidents of the organization are Richard T. Conway, John Conway, Lawrence J. Buckley, Edward L. McMahon, Robert Crawford, John H. Mahoney, John J. Mahoney, Thomas Mullin, Michael Coughlin, Joseph Hanan, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Charles Fairbrother, John S. Welch, Daniel Twomey, James J. Campbell, Edward Morris, Thomas Twomey, John F. Gannon, Edward Riley, Timothy McCarthy, Joseph P. Meaney, Charles Cowdrey, John Mahoney, William Taylor, D. F. Reardon, Charles Hayes.

INDUSTRIAL SHOW CLOSED

BOARD OF TRADE CONDUCTED A MARDI GRAS FEATURE FOR ALL PRESENT SATURDAY EVENING

The exhibition of Lowell-made goods, which was conducted under the auspices of the Lowell board of trade at the Kaslo in Thorndike street, last week, was brought to a close Saturday evening and all those who have taken in the show, and they number over 80,000, are unanimous in saying that the exhibition was the best and most successful of its kind ever conducted in this city.

The closing event consisted of a Mardi Gras celebration and proved both interesting and amusing to the 500 or more men and women in attendance. At 9 o'clock the power was shut off and the board of trade orchestra, T. A. D. Sullivan, conductor, struck up an air and a parade was formed, this consisting of the police officers in the lead, followed by the firemen, exhibitors, members of the board of trade and visitors and for half an hour the various sights of the exhibition were seen and admired, the large gathering marching to the sweet strains of the orchestra.

The ladies were supplied with confetti, long ribbons and paper caps and they enjoyed themselves to their heart's content, throwing the tiny papers all over the place, and over everybody present.

At the close of the parade, general dancing was started and soon all the men and women were waiting through the aisles of the Kaslo, in the meantime samples from the various exhibits were being given out and when the "Star Spangled Banner" was struck up by the orchestra as a finale, all proclaimed the evening the best ever.

PRES. WILSON'S MESSAGE

WILL INDICATE HOW MONEY NECESSARY FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE MAY BE RAISED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—President Wilson will indicate in his annual message to congress which he is now writing, how, in his opinion, the money necessary to provide for national defense, as proposed by the administration, may be raised.

This was indicated as the result of last night's conference between the president and Representative Fitzgerald of New York, chairman of the house appropriation committee. Mr. Fitzgerald, in urging the president to deal with the question, called attention to the fact that the president was authorized to do so by congress. Some of the president's advisers, however, have told him that inasmuch as the house has sole authority to originate revenue legislation he ought not to appear to usurp that power.

A number of democratic leaders in congress, including Mr. Fitzgerald and Senator Underwood, are opposed to a bond issue to provide for the defense plans because such expenditures would have to be continued from year to year. The president will lay aside practically all other work this week in order to have, if possible, his message in the hands of the public printer before Thanksgiving day.

The president in his message probably will lay stress upon the importance of legislation for increases in the army and navy; a merchant marine; rural credits greater measure of self-government for the Philippines; conservation and ratification of the Haitian, Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties.

Business records speak louder than campaign speeches. Vote for Joseph Mullin, Joseph McCusker, 52 Lundberg street.—Adv.

MIGNAULT For Mayor

Americans? So let us be a little more broad-minded and liberal. Let us get together and work for our common cause, that of advancing the very best interest of our city, our state and our country, as Americans and Americans only.

I am not appealing to you as a candidate of any particular element or of any faction. I appeal to you for the consideration of my candidacy on the ground that I am, first of all, an American citizen and I seek your support with the idea of satisfying a legitimate ambition, cherished for the past two years, that of being mayor of the city of Lowell, the city I love before all others. I am not a candidate because the salary appeals to me; I am not a candidate because I am desirous of craving for power, that I may EXTERMINATE MY OPPONENTS. But I am a candidate because I appreciate the honor of being mayor of the city of Lowell and because I feel I can administer the affairs of the department of public safety, at least, a little better than it has been done in the past.

My specialty in life has been that of diagnosing cases and furnishing medicine. In my profession, one can diagnose cases and provide remedies. In municipal affairs all citizens have a right to diagnose the troubles in the administration of the departments' business, but it is quite impossible for me to apply the remedy unless he is diagnosed such power by his fellow-citizens. I want to tell you, fellow-citizens, that truth and honor have been my motto through life and I still bank on that.

If you elect me, my friends, I will eliminate one campaign issue that is so rusty with age—I have reference to a molasses ambulance. It must appear strange to you, for it does not seem to be the city of Lowell support a motor propelled vehicle to transport drunkards from all parts of the city to the police station, and see daily a motorized conveyance marked Lowell Humane Society, driving through the streets, picking up here and there a stray drunkard or cat, and yet when a HUMAN being is run over by an automobile or meets with any form of accident or sudden misfortune, such cases have to wait until the noble horse can do the best he can, but oftentimes is not efficient when minutes are priceless. Will my gentlemen, it is HUMANITY first, gentlemen, it is HUMANITY first.

No time is more opportune than this week to call your attention to the absolute irresponsible and incompetent manner in which the big question of a public hall has been handled these past few years. Any person who visits the beautiful exhibit of our manufacturers' products now being displayed at the Kaslo must realize the importance of a public hall sufficiently large for all purposes. To my mind any man who is responsible for the failure to construct a public hall is not entitled to your consideration.

History tells us that experience is the best teacher. What can you expect of the growing generation of the man of tomorrow, when the administrations we have had since the advent of the new charter have persistently kept the city of Lowell in contempt of the law in the isolation hospital case? Now, my friends, the management of the city under the management of the mayor are those of the police and health. I am quite sure you will agree with me that my experience of some 30 odd years in the active practice of my profession especially qualifies me to handle the department of health in the most practical manner than any of my opponents.

I believe in the strictest discipline in the police department. I believe in the enforcement of the law, both in spirit and in letter, and I really believe that it is a degradation of the department to use it for a political machine and all the evils that follow in its trail.

I am independent of any and all interests. I am my own boss. I shall permit no clique to tell me what to do. I am free to give my best efforts to the duties of mayor in performing them without fear or favor, faithfully and honestly, and meeting all my obligations like a man.

After this week of active campaigning by my opponents I find that they have abused one another to their heart's content. If one-tenth of what they have said is true, I am thoroughly convinced that not one of my four opponents deserves to be elected mayor or of Lowell.

Great Plans for Observation of Anniversary

Tuesday Evening

Great preparations are being made by the officers and committee members of the O.M.I. cadets for the eleventh anniversary of the body, which will be observed by appropriate exercises tomorrow evening in their armory at the school hall. Invitations have been issued to former officers and members of the organization, and a genuine good time is anticipated. The usual banquet, dear to the hearts of the cadets will be served and there will be addresses by Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O.M.I. officers of the body and other prominent speakers. There will also be a social which will include a minstrel show under the direction of Miss Longley. The athletic feature will be a spirited exhibition of amateur boxing in which leading local exponents of the manly art will participate. It is expected that the hall will be crowded for the event.

Signs of worms are: Drowsy, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

CLARK SUPPORTS PRESIDENT

The wish was father to the thought in the prediction or many that Speaker Champ Clark would not serve as President Wilson's policy of preparedness. They fondly thought that the friction which originated in the Baltimore convention still continued and that Mr. Clark would cut loose from Wilson leadership at the first graceful opportunity. Had such been the desire of the speaker, the opportunity would now be at hand, but the political prophets have been confounded. Mr. Clark has come out in favor of preparedness in words that are positive enough to prevent his later abandonment of President Wilson on this issue. Furthermore, Mr. Clark has made it more difficult than ever for Mr. Bryan to split the democratic party on the rock of preparedness.

Champ Clark has not only declared in favor of a reasonable policy of preparedness but he has given assurances of his support to President Wilson. He has not specifically favored the details of the bill to be presented to congress but he has so sanctioned the principle that it is safe to assume he will be with the president. Incidentally, he avoids the extremes of the ultra-pacifists and the ultra-militarists by declaring that he is in favor of a reasonable defense which shall not impose militarism on the country or cause the government to go bankrupt. In this he voices the sentiments of the great majority of Americans and subscribes to the sentiments of President Wilson.

That the preparedness question will arouse considerable agitation in congress is to be expected. Feeling is not normal and cannot be normal during the war and there will be ulterior motives behind some of the congressional pleas pro and con. Bryan's dovish messages of brotherly love will be supported by many who champion militarism elsewhere, and Mr. Roosevelt's ideas will be just as ardently advanced by ammunition-makers and men who have lost their grasp on the American ideal. President Wilson stands for moderation and sanity, but he sees that America cannot afford to be inefficient and weak in the face of a world that has thrown law to the winds and that is swayed by the slogan that might is right. It is gratifying to find that Champ Clark will use his great influence wisely, and his patriotic example will have a strong bearing on all Americans irrespective of party.

COME OUT AND VOTE

As an American citizen and a loyal son of Lowell you must realize the importance of the voting function both at the primaries and at election. You must know that Lowell will get the type of government which its citizens require, for if the people want the best they will not be satisfied until they get the best; if they have been getting poor and inefficient service, the remedy is in their hands. To select the men who are to administer the affairs of Lowell is therefore no slight task, and it is up to you to do your part. To vote is your privilege, but do not forget that it is also your duty. Exercise your privilege tomorrow and do your duty as a citizen; come out and vote.

Many good voters who would not think of absenting themselves from the polls on election day do not regard the primary vote as important, but it is often more important than the vote on election day. If the public choice at the primaries is not good, or in accordance with the best interests of the city, the final selection cannot be good. Do not make the mistake of thinking the primary vote unimportant; come out and vote tomorrow for the candidate that, in your opinion, is deserving of your support.

The complaint is often heard that citizens of the best type do not run for political office. In some aspects it is true, but this condition cannot be remedied while the public is indifferent. It is noteworthy that the most bitter and persistent critics are those who do not take interest enough in their city to come out and vote at the primaries or at elections. Let us have none of this tomorrow. There is a long list of candidates and it is not hard to make a choice if you vote with the proper motives. Aside with indifference, then, let us all go to the polls in our full voting strength. If we do this, the election will be representative of the city and we will get the candidates that the majority of the people desire. This is the essence of democracy and it is necessary for good city government. Come out and vote tomorrow like a citizen of Lowell in the trust and best sense.

DEFAUDING POETS

A new variety of an old time game has been exposed in the trial and conviction of John T. Hall of New York who defrauded over fifteen hundred aspiring poets and some writers out of considerable sums of money. The method employed was the publication of plans for a fake song poem contest in which the winner was to get a handsome prize. Many took the attractive bait, were wheeled out of money for setting the poem to music and were then dropped from Mr. Hall's correspondence list. To be sure there was no contest and there was nothing straight about the entire transaction.

The original crook at the head of the publishing company made thousands of dollars which will accumulate good interest while he is serving a sentence of two years in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary.

There is a temptation for the paragraphers to poke fun at the poets who were duped, but the humorous side of the case does not make the crime less serious. The desire to get into print is as old as the art of printing, and some of the world's greatest writers did things as foolish in their early days as they did who turned their money and their poetry over to a clever crook. It is easier to be funny in our judgments of such things than to be just and were it not that so many sensitive natures shrink from publicity there would be many exposures of fakes such as that engineered by Mr. Hall. A casual examination of the advertising columns of many magazines will show up schemes that furnish a parallel to that exposed by federal action.

THE CANDIDATES

There is a large list of candidates for our public offices, different in ability and different in personality. Though among them are a few of the professional politician class, the collection is on the whole better than the average, affording a good opportunity for wise selection. Most citizens know the majority well, either personally or by report, for they have lived their lives in this city and their records are fairly well known. The difficult thing for the voter to do is to be faithful to his friends while doing his duty with no regard for personal preference. Yet, all should reject the more obviously unfit and vote for those under whose direction the voter believes that the affairs of the city will be in good hands. Since we cannot vote for all the good fellows, let us vote for those whom we believe to be the most desirable, rejecting those who have no genuine claim to public consideration, or who, having been tried, have been found woefully wanting in honor, in ability, in sincerity and in temperament. Lowell is too good a city to have any but the best possible government. It is up to the voters to see that it gets the best government, and the way to secure it is to vote for the best candidates.

COSTLY NEUTRALITY

The longer the war continues the stronger does the good fortune of this country shine out amid the darkness that hangs over the world. This good fortune, both in a material and a moral sense, comes not only from our being neutral but from our being neutral at such a great distance. Reports from Switzerland prove that some brands of European neutrality do not have a like effect. Switzerland is neutral but her neutrality has cost her $51,000,000 up to the end of October. At the beginning of the war she decided to stay aloof but meanwhile she mobilized her army and kept it in the field so as to be ready to repel any attacks on her independence or integrity. The government has just published the cost and has expressed its intention of meeting it by increased taxes, including a heavy tax on tobacco. Neutrality comes high in Switzerland, but what is fifty millions to the cost of the actual war? Belgium and Serbia were not neutral but Switzerland will have paid her taxes and recovered from the depressing effects of war long before the other nations will have forgotten or forgiven.

IN THE POLLING BOOTH

On your ballot will be many names, but you cannot vote for them all. If your vote is to count in the total, you must not vote for more than one for mayor, two for alderman and two for the school committee. From the list of candidates the men who will run for election will be selected as follows: the two who head the list for mayor will be chosen, and the highest four respectively from the list of candidates for alderman and school committee. The individual voter has nothing to do with this selection. At primaries and elections he may vote for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled, but if he votes for more his ballot will be counted a blank. In spite of advice and former experiences, some blanks are to be expected, but any voter who gives the matter a little thought prior to marking his ballot can avoid casting a blank, and who, after going to the trouble of voting wants to have his ballot counted as a blank?

WELL WORTH WHILE

enthusiasm so that the movement may have a permanent effect on the city. Individual exhibitors will undoubtedly reap the reward of their readiness to do their part, both in direct patronage and indirect advertising, but the feeling of local pride that the show engendered will have a far reaching effect. Now let us all pull together for a larger, livelier and lovelier Lowell.

SEEN AND HEARD

One of the pleasures of editing a newspaper is the fact that every man who buys a copy of said newspaper reserves the right to control the policy of said newspaper.

Did Not Know Herself

"What did you learn at the school?" the boss asked the fair applicant for the stenographic job. "I learned that spelling is essential to a stenographer," she said. The boss chuckled. "Good. Now how do you spell essential?" The fair girl hesitated for the fraction of a second. "There are three ways," she said. "Which do you prefer?" And she got the job—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When the Whistle Blew

A party of visitors were being shown through a factory, their guide was one of the assistant department foremen and he showed them the interesting points of different operations as they passed through one after the other of the departments. Suddenly the whistle blew for the close of the day and the scores of workers in the department where the party happened to be vanished like magic through the doors and down the stairway. "Do all of the workmen drop their tools the instant the whistle blows?" asked one of the party. "No, not all of them," responded the guide. "The more orderly men have their tools all put away before that time and their hats and coats on."

Signs of the Weather

The best weather prophet in the world is the United States weather bureau, which is right at least four times out of five. In regard to the less scientific guides, here are a few weather signs which an older probably than anyone living today, according to the Monitor. Experience has shown them to be fairly reliable, and some of them can be explained on a scientific basis: Moonlight nights have the heaviest frosts. The higher the clouds the finer the weather. The farther the sight the nearer the rain. Dew is an indication of fine weather. When stars flicker in a dark background, rain or snow follows soon. Expect a strong wind with stormy weather when smoke from chimneys hangs near the ground. Here are a few in verse. They have the advantage of being easily remembered: Clear moon, Frost soon. Frost soon, Rain before seven. Rain before seven, Blue before eleven. If the sun set in gray The next will be a rainy day. When the wind's in the south The rain's in its mouth. The wind in the west Suits everyone best. If you see grass in January Look grain in your granary. Evening red and morning gray Help the traveler on his way: Evening gray and morning red Bring down rain upon his head. When the clouds appear like rocks and towers, The clouds're refreshed by frequent showers. He Was Some Bison If you have a ten dollar treasury note, just take it out and glance over it carefully, for you may see the picture of Black Diamond, an aged buffalo, just put to death in New York. Or, should you desire to shed a tear or two over the likeness of the buffalo, and not possessing a $10 treasury note as previously mentioned, a nickel of 1915 mintage will answer the purpose just as well, for the buffalo's photo was used in the making of the die for that coin, as well as for the printing of the treasury note. The buffalo was more than 20 years old and the largest bison in captivity, weighing 1,350 pounds. He had been an inmate of the Central park corral for many years. The bl-

KINDS OF RHEUMATISM

In popular language the word "rheumatism" is a term that covers a multitude of ills of which pain is the chief symptom.

Articular rheumatism, inflammatory rheumatism, and rheumatic fever are all names for the same disease. Muscular rheumatism affects the muscles and does not spread from one spot to another like inflammatory rheumatism. Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism. Some people have rheumatism every winter especially those people who inherit a rheumatic tendency. They will continue to have recurring attacks until the blood is built up to a strength sufficient to overcome the rheumatic poison. External applications and drugs that simply relieve the pain are useless. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and really correct the trouble.

With the poisons in the blood there is a continual combat between the health forces and the disease. When the rheumatic poison prevails the blood gets thin rapidly. When the blood is made rich and red by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the poisons are destroyed and expelled.

The free booklet "Building Up the Blood" tells the whole story and the diet book "What to Eat" will be sent on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

How to Her Pride

An old Scotswoman who had resisted all the coaxing of her friends to have her photograph taken, was at last induced to consent in order that she might send her likeness to her son in America.

On receiving the first proof she failed to recognize the figure thereon presented as herself so card in hand she set out for the artist's studio to ask if there was a mistake. "Is that me?" she queried. "Yes, madam," said the artist. "And it is like me," she again asked. "Yes, madam, it's a speaking likeness."

"Awful," she said resignedly. "It's a humblin' sight,"—Tit-Bits. E. N. H. R. D.

There's nothing now that woos my eye In autumn like a pumpkin pie! It may be that in other days I used to walk moonlighted ways With young girls and my heart knew, And mebbe said I loved her so, That till the stars should cease to shine I would be horn and she'd be mine.

And out beneath the harvest moon I told her life would be all June; That she would love me like to June, As sure as rivers reach the sea. That mountains high might come between, And fountains wide, and oceans green, But I would never pause for that, But run to her where she was at.

Though all the armies of the world Should stand between, Where shots were hurled, And where the deadly gases lay Along the plain, I'd make my way Until I'd clasp her to my breast, And then my lips would do the rest! Extravagant? Yes, that may be, But if you have talked the same as me.

But if she could not build a pie Out of a pumpkin, love would die; The most of love, I'm sure, is made To be in love, and loved, to good. But love has somehow got to eat, And homemade pumpkin pie is sweet; And love, when fed on them will stay With one forever and a day.

A pumpkin pie, and not too thin— These with their hearts are in line. The pumpkin house kind do not get. The pumpkin pie we used to know. The pumpkin pie full up with joy, Like that we knowed when—just a boy— I gotta go now. Mother's come To tell me that she's made me some! —Judd M. Lewis in the Houston Post.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind. I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if my medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and I am pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. Josie HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

All our testimonials are guaranteed genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.

Girl Put Into Dungeon by Parents
—Now a Physical Wreck—Has
Forgotten How to Talk

EASTON, Md., Nov. 22.—Today a physical wreck, Miss Grace Marshall, 28 years of age, who was Saturday rescued from solitary confinement in her home after 12 years of imprisonment, must be taught all over how to talk. Her long isolation has resulted in complete loss of speech. Miss Marshall is now at the home of her aunt, Mrs. James, under the constant supervision of Dr. Charles E. Davidson, who was instrumental in her release.

In spite of the fact that she has been reduced by the system under which she was compelled to exist to a living skeleton of 31 pounds 1 ounce, that she has forgotten how to talk and almost how to think, the physician said yesterday, after one of his many visits to her, that he believed she would live, and that her mind would respond to the humane treatment that will be guaranteed her from now on.

"Miss Marshall understands everything that is said to her," declared Dr. Davidson yesterday afternoon. "She responds promptly to every suggestion made to her, but she is unable to talk. She tried to speak, but is unsuccessful in forming words. The most careful treatment is necessary to rebuild her, to put flesh on her poor, attenuated frame, to teach her to use words and to strengthen the mind that years of the most terrible suffering have nearly shattered."

Grace Marshall was one of several children of Farmer Marshall. At the age of 11 she was a normal child, healthy and bright and strong of

WILL WELCOME YANKEES

GREAT CHANCE FOR AMERICANS
IN RUSSIA AFTER WAR, SAYS
CAPT. HART

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Russia will welcome American brains, captains of industry and Yankee inventiveness at the close of the war.

This was the statement yesterday at the Harvard club of Capt. Ernest Hart, personal friend of Czar Nicholas, who has just made the longest trip through Russia in the interest of the British and Russian Red Cross societies that has been accomplished by any one person since the commencement of hostilities.

It is for the purpose of interesting Americans of all classes in Russia that Capt. Hart, who saw service in the "war," has come to the United States and especially to this city. He is here under the direct patronage of Prince Oldenburg of Petrograd, but wishes it understood that his work has no connection whatsoever with the work of the American Red Cross.

"My object in coming here," said Capt. Hart, "is to make known to Americans the condition of affairs in Russia at the present time. I have been in that great country within very few weeks and know the conditions that prevail from the palace of the czar to the hut of the peasant. I have finished a journey in the interests of the Russian Red Cross, inspecting Red Cross stations, that has taken me over a route of 20,000 versts, or about 15,000 miles."

"What was the real feeling among the Russian soldiers when the Grand Duke Nicholas was deposed from his great power at the head of the army?" asked the reporter.

"There was a feeling of the utmost loyalty towards the czar, who became supreme commander at the head of all the forces in the empire. If any person thinks that the Russian soldier is not loyal to his country and his emperor he is mistaken. Why, the common soldiers fairly worship the czar, whom they 'term little father.' The Russian soldier will give his life, will give all that he has for his emperor and country. The idea that has come abroad that he is an indifferent fighter, without interest in the final outcome, is all wrong."

"What will be the outcome of the war? Will the allies win?" inquired the newspaper man, without much doubt in his mind as to the answer that would be given.

"There is not the slightest feeling of doubt in the minds of the Russians," replied Capt. Hart. "They know that they have unlimited means at their command. As far as the British army is concerned I will say that it has not yet reached its height in power. More and more men are enlisting and the army is being perfected in every way."

FUNERAL OF HILLSTROM

SIX GIRLS, INCLUDING ONE SAID TO

ACTED AS BEARERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 22.—Six Swedish girls, including one said to have been Joseph Hillstrom's sweetheart, acted as pall bearers at his funeral services here yesterday. Each girl wore a red sash which was attached to the casket when the body was taken to the depot and sent to W. D. Haywood at Chicago. There was no prayer and no religious ceremony.

WEDDED IN THE OPEN AIR

MISS RYAN AND H. B. STEVENS,
SUFFRAGIST EDITORS, MARRIED
BY OWN RITUAL

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—On the crest of a hill on a farm at Hooksett, N. H., with nothing but the sky and clouds above, winds blowing the cold air across the Merrimack river on them and whistling through the leafless trees, Miss Agnes R. Ryan, managing editor of the Woman's Journal, the leading publication of the suffragists, was married yesterday to Henry B. Stevens, who has been associated with her in the publication.

Only the immediate relatives of the two were witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. B. A. Robinson, the ritual for which was prepared by themselves and modeled on the one by which Lucy Stone and Henry Blackwell were married years ago.

And while they are married, before Miss Ryan would consent to the ceremony, she insisted that she should not have to bear the name of the man to whom she is wed.

COMM. CARMICHAEL

HE FEELS PROUD OF THE FILTRATION PLANT AND CLAIMS IT HAS SOLVED THE WATER PROBLEM

If it is your desire to visit the filtration plant at the boulevard, you're welcome. More than 500 persons went out to look the place over Sunday afternoon and in view of the interest shown in the inspection, Commissioner Carmichael announces that the plant will be open for inspection for the next week or ten days and that employees of the department will be on hand to show visitors about and explain things to them. The commissioner is very proud of the plant and predicts that it has solved the problem of pure city water for a great many years. He says it has attracted attention all over the country and that experts on water purification are writing it up in magazines and many have planned to come long distances to inspect it in all its technical features.

KILLED HIS STEPFATHER

CHARLES H. LUCAS DID IT TO
PROTECT HIS MOTHER, HE SAYS

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Twenty-four-year-old Charles H. Lucas, who is charged with beating his stepfather, Elias H. Milroy, to death with a baseball bat at their home, 31 Oak street, Somerville, early yesterday morning, told the police that he struck Milroy because he could not control himself when he saw his mother being threatened by her husband.

His mother, Mrs. Milroy, declared that she lived in dread of her husband when he had been drinking, and that she had feared he would kill her.

After killing his stepfather, Lucas is said to have asked his cousin, Fred Ramezelli, to notify the police. When they arrived they found Lucas seated in a chair in the kitchen with the bat in his hand.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A most interesting meeting of Central council, A.O.U.W., was held yesterday afternoon in Hilbertian hall with a large attendance of members. A letter from the state president was received showing his regard for the order in Lowell and surrounding towns. James J. Harold, the county president, expressed his intention of visiting Div. 1, on Dec. 2, when divisions will have a grand social night. The Ladies' auxiliary will also be present.

The Central council elected officers for the annual party, as follows: John P. Sheehan, general manager; Patrick J. McCann, assistant general manager; John McInerney, floor director; assistant floor director, Martin Sullivan; chairman of music committee, James Lillis; treasurer, John P. Tenney; aids, James A. Sheehan, Joseph McCusker, Martin F. McCarthy, John O'Neill, Edward P. Slattery; reception committee, James O'Sullivan, William Nelson, Henry Smith, James Hickey, Patrick Reardon and Michael Cusky. President Sheehan delegated each member of the council as a committee of one to further the interest of the organization and speakers of national prominence are slated to appear in Lowell soon to speak on the benefits and other questions regarding the order.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

The annual meeting of the members of the Lowell Equal Suffrage league was held Saturday evening with Mrs. Charles D. Palmer, president, in the chair. The treasurer, Miss Bertha Abbott, read her report, which showed that the receipts amounted to $1713.56, while the expenses were $1455.69, leaving a balance on hand of $257.87. Bills payable, $34.44, leaving the amount of money available, $153.53.

A feature of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Mrs. Charles D. Palmer, president; Mrs. Boyden Pillsbury and Mrs. C. Brooks Stevens, vice presidents; Miss Bertha M. Abbott, treasurer; Mrs. Blanche Hard, secretary; corresponding secretary and delegate to state executive board; Miss Ella M. Wells, recording secretary.

SAYS FESS PAID $1000

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Michael J. Hines, treasurer of the Massachusetts Trade Union Liberty league, at a meeting of the Boston Central Labor union yesterday, made the announcement that ex-Gov. Eugene N. Fess paid $1000 to settle the suit of Denis D. Driscoll, which grew out of the recent primaries campaign.

This was the first statement from either party to the suit as to the amount paid, and was made in an address by Mr. Hines in which he was answering the statements of the Anti-Slavery league contained in a circular which had been scattered about the hall before any of the delegates arrived.

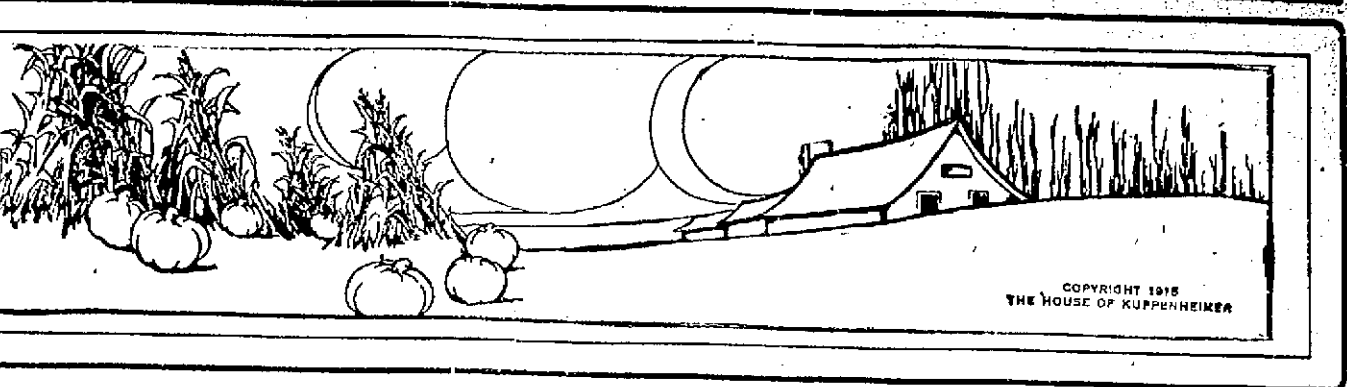

TO PASS ON DEFECTIVES

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—As a result of the case of the Bollinger baby, which was allowed to die last week because of its deformities, a board of judges will be formed to decide all such questions in the future.

A movement to this end is expected to start under the auspices of eugenicists, physicians and laymen, as the result of the recommendation of the coroner's jury of physicians, who weighed the evidence in the Bollinger baby case.

The movement will probably be a national in scope. It is likely that a federal law will result.

In the case of Patrick Crowley who was injured while working in a trench at the boulevard filtration plant the city solicitor has appealed to the supreme judicial court against the finding of the industrial accident board. Crowley was in the employ of the water department at the time of the accident. He was working in a trench that was not shored and there was a cave-in. Crowley was injured and a little later he was sent to the insane hospital at Danvers. He is still at the hospital. At a hearing under the workmen's compensation act a committee on arbitration reported in favor of Crowley to the extent that his guardian, his wife, be allowed $5 a week for 560 weeks. There was a review of the case before the full industrial accident board and the board sustained the finding of the arbitration committee. The city solicitor has now appealed to the supreme judicial court.

Crowley was injured and a little later he was sent to the insane hospital at Danvers. He is still at the hospital. At a hearing under the workmen's compensation act a committee on arbitration reported in favor of Crowley to the extent that his guardian, his wife, be allowed $5 a week for 560 weeks. There was a review of the case before the full industrial accident board and the board sustained the finding of the arbitration committee. The city solicitor has now appealed to the supreme judicial court.

DEATH BY THREE MEN IN BOS-

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—While his wife and three children sobbed hysterically by his deathbed and neighbors stood by unable to alleviate his suffering, the three men that stabbed Collegio Lamonic, aged 33, of 76 Carter street, in front of his home about 6 last evening, escaped. Lamonic had three wounds in the left side of his chest and died without making any statement to the police, as they were not notified of the stabbing until an hour after it happened.

The commissioner's financial report for October shows that the school department, out of an appropriation of $455,574.00, has an unexpended balance of $122,232.11 and he allows that the department should pull through the year quite cheerfully on that amount.

THE ART OF WEARING JEWELRY

The unusual production that was held at the Carnegie Music hall in New York recently, under the title of "Yesterday and Tomorrow," has served to bring back to this country a notable Parisian fashion artist, Eugene Carroll Kelley, who has made a name for himself in the past few years as an expert in costume design and as an artistic designer of women's dresses, particularly evening gowns. The production at Carnegie hall is an international fashion extravaganza and Mr. Kelley was brought here to direct it from an art and fashion standpoint. Since his arrival in New York he has been largely quoted in the newspapers in interviews upon his general ideas as to the coming season and the styles of the coming season must have not only given the information desired but has at the same time enlightened principles on the general question of costume design which are of interest to the jeweler as well as to the dressmaker and the public.

Mr. Kelley has laid down the maxim that it matters not whether a woman has $10.00 or $100 a year to spend on her clothes, beauty, harmony and dignity may be sustained if she uses thought and deliberation in choosing her attire. His ideas and principles are so thoroughly in accord with the campaign of education of the public in regard to the wearing of jewelry that his attention was called to the work The Jeweler's Circular has been doing in the education of the public with the request that he express himself as to the relation between jewelry and dress. The work of this journal in its educational campaign was highly endorsed by this artist in every way. In fact, he stated that in costume design, jewelry after all is the final note and often becomes the optical center of the picture which the well-dressed woman presents; that the jewelry which she afterwards puts on may make or mar the work of the artist who has designed the gown or snail or enhance the good taste expressed by the wearer in choosing the gown and its material. He noted, often outside of the dress creator's hands, but is one which has a most serious effect upon his work.

"The close relationship between dress and jewelry must be so generally recognized that to dwell upon it would be superfluous," said Mr. Kelley, "and the principles which I have sought to enunciate as underlying correct costume extend directly to the jewelry which is worn with the costume. Your campaign of education to teach the public the first principles in the wearing of jewelry has struck exactly the right note and is exactly in accord with my ideas on the subject. The work is bound to have a good effect upon the American public."

"Appropriateness and harmony are undoubtedly the points to keep in mind and in a general way cover the subject. There is no doubt that the American women are great wearers of jewelry and, in fact, jewelry is more generally worn here than in Europe, so the education of the American woman as to jewelry wearing is, therefore, perhaps, more important in America than anywhere else in the world."

"The American woman is a woman of taste and all we have to do is to show her the right thing and she will recognize it," he always contended that there is no excuse for the cheap and tasteless effects in dress. No matter what the price at which they are made—no matter whether they are expensive or whether they are made for a few dollars, gowns can be made artistically, properly and of the best material available for the price; the same principle can be carried out in the jewelry which adorns these gowns."

"The individuality which should be shown in the selection of a gown can also be shown in the selection of the jewelry to wear with it, and we should pay more attention to this point and while following the general trend of fashion should not permit ourselves to be molded into stereotyped lines. When the American woman does follow fashion blindly, she tends to make the fashionable dress a sort of a uniform, because it is the fashion, whereas, while following the general trend, and understanding the dominating note of the style, she should see to it that her individual characteristics are considered in the final application."

The third point which is emphasized so well in your campaign of education of jewelry wearing namely, that the effect becoming to the individual wearer, should never be lost sight of. It is due to the importance which I place on this point that to some extent I have favored the wearing of jewelry made for the woman who wishes to dress in exquisite taste. Of course, I understand that this can only apply to the woman of wealth and fashion. The girl or matron who cannot afford to have her jewelry made especially to suit her individual characteristics must, therefore, see to it that she selects from the products on the market those which are both appropriate to the gown and becoming to her features and form.

"We must constantly bear in mind in the use of jewelry that it is an ornamentation, that unless properly used (even though becoming), may clash with the ornamentation of the dress itself. I believe that we should give consideration to this point to the extent of considering how much of how little jewelry is to be worn with the gown before the latter is settled upon. The more jewelry to be worn on the gown, I have found the best dress on which to show off jewelry is the simplest in general effect. It must be new, it must be modern, it must be used on perfect lines, but it must be used purely as a background to get the best effect of the jewelry, the jeweler being given the task of the decoration."

"To the woman of fashion and wealth who can have her gowns specially designed, emphasis should be laid on the importance of having her jewelry selected in accordance with the jewelry which she wishes to use, the designer should understand exactly what she intends to apply as an adornment before the gown is determined upon. In fact, she should bring her jewelry to her gown designer and let him carry out the motive or prepare for the effect which will be obtained by the gown and jewelry together. It is unfortunately true that lots of women of means purchase jewelry that they like and often show exceedingly good taste in their purchases, but do not consider their gowns in so doing. Then they buy the gowns which they like with equally good taste without considering the jewelry that they have or intend to wear with them. When they put these together, inharmonious results and they do not know why."

"When doing up her dishes Cook says," she would feel lost without some number 0 steel wool. She cleans the bottom of her kettles, her aluminum ware and takes off any burnt food in kettles with it. She dips a wad in kerosene and cleans her gas range with it. She also keeps a wad on her ironing board to clean her irons on."

Cook stretched a piece of light-weight cheesecloth over the opening of our furnace pipe just under the register, and you would be surprised at the amount of dust and ashes it prevents from settling about the house, as well as the smoke on the walls near the register. The cloth does not interfere with the draft of the furnace in the slightest.

Cook is a great user of salt for a great many things. She says a pinch of salt added to mustard, helps to prevent it from drying or caking. To make the gas burn brightly she sprinkles a little salt over the top of the mantle. She does this while the gas is burning.

When her oven does not brown as well as she would like to have it, she puts her cakes or tarts on the upper tray and throws a little sugar on the floor of the oven.

She told me today how to make striped sandwiches. White and brown bread is cut thin and placed in alternating layers. It is then wrapped in a dampened cloth and placed under a weight overnight. Then the pressed layer may be cut in narrow strips.

Cook suggested the other day that she had a very good plan to use an old umbrella. Remove the cover and enamel the frame white to prevent rust. Then suspend the frame by the handle from the ceiling near the range and on ironing day she finds it useful for small articles which can be hung on the points to finish drying. When not in use she can put up the frame and it takes up little room.

She says to clean a white enameled bed to dissolve one tablespoon of baking soda in one pint of warm water. Saturate a soft cloth with the mixture and wash the bed. This process should clean any white enameled furniture.

The short ends of candles, melted and mixed with equal parts of turpentine, are used by Cook to give a fine polish to the floors and oilcloths.

Cook says she finds the cover of a large box a good thing to put on the floor under the stove when she is taking up ashes. She draws out the ashpan, sets it in the cover, puts a newspaper over the pan and takes it out. If the wind is high the newspaper keeps the ashes from blowing all over her.

When she hangs the clothes out in winter and this would be good for anyone going on a long motor ride in cold weather, she puts a newspaper over her chest and another across her back, under her coat. You will be surprised, she thinks, to see how it keeps out the chilly winds. You can also do your toes up in newspapers and wrap a piece of newspaper about your ankles.

To make tough beef tender, Cook says to cut your steak the day before using, into slices about two inches thick. Rub them over with a small quantity of soda, wash off the next morning, cut to suitable thickness and cook as usual. The process is also good for fowl and mutton.

Cook cleans her poultry on a newspaper in which she wraps up all the waste, so that she has no cleaning up to do afterwards.

The next time you bake beans, she says, add a diced carrot, a couple of tomatoes, cut fine and one small onion browned in pork fat, and see what a delicious dish you have.

If you are washing fancy fringed bedspreads, towels or tablecloths, Cook says after they are dry and ready for ironing, to shake well and brush the fringe out with a clean whisk broom. It will be almost like new.

Cook always saves the paraffine taken from the tops of jellies and preserves and also the ends of candles. They are very good to use in the starch on washday, as they prevent the starch from sticking to the irons.

Rusty irons can be made beautifully smooth by rubbing them, when hot, on a piece of beeswax tied in a cloth and then upon a cloth sprinkled with salt.

LADY LOOKABOUT

So many times of late I have been conscious of a suggestion of mouldiness on freshly purchased fabrics, I have wondered if the methods of ripening employed by retailers may not well be investigated. The fruit is necessarily gathered in an unripe condition and is shipped here as it is gathered. This unripe fruit is then ripened by means of heat. Often it is done in rooms prepared for the purpose, but I have been informed that cases have been known where the fruit is covered with nondescript ragged clothing, bedding and discarded carpets and burlap. This may not be true, but I cannot help thinking that the latter process of ripening would account for the unmistakable suggestion of mouldiness so often present.

The Pantalottes

As our skirts grow shorter and shorter, we are informed that we must pass a flexible reed or wire through the hem of our petticoats. Fashion has ever been a cruel, unscrupulous, much-feared task-mistress, and for the most part we have been obedient and uncomplaining devotees, even when she ordered us, fat or slim, to don tight skirts; even when she ordered us, old or young, to uncover our necks to the public view. At her command we adopted happy, hollowing hits when every feature of our face went forlorn and our heads bowed, but this very edict, that we must wire our very short, very full skirts, dismayed us. I fear it is the straw that will break the camel's back. The camel probably will live through it. I predict a great run of popularity for pantalottes.

Tete-a-Tete Tables

Something of the spirit of sociability seems to have gone from the soda fountain of our favorite meeting place with the removal of the little cream tables. They made such a delightful excuse for lingering with a friend over refreshments, that I suppose we did abuse the privilege of using them. Now that they are gone we realize that they furnished a large part of the charm of dropping in there, every time we are being silent, admonished to make use of our refreshment and hasten on our way. Under the present condition, an indefinable something which tempted us to enter when we really did not need refreshment, seems to have deserted the place.

Our Thankfulness

With such a delightful autumn, it seems hardly possible that the season of Thanksgiving is again with us. It has always seemed that no matter how buffeted by misfortune one may be, he always has something for which he may be devoutly thankful, even if it be, as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" suggests, that he have not a hare-lip—providing of course that he have not one.

This year I am sure that the one great big subject for thankfulness is over-shadowing and over-topping all else, and making all else seem puny and insignificant in comparison, is the fact that our nation is still at peace with all the world. Another Thanksgiving may see us in the midst of the fray, therefore, let us render thanks for the favor shown, and let us pray that it may be continued.

Leaning Telegraph Poles

The pronounced slant on the new telegraph poles on Gotham street is suggestive of something very different from what one would expect from these supporters of overhead wires. They diverge several degrees from the perpendicular, and they are so much longer than they appear, that their very conspicuousness makes them dubious, and by their slant they will probably be painted black like the rest of their kin—not because they flank the cemeteries—and their growing and much-frequented neighborhood will have to endure always their disfiguring presence. There are other leaning poles in the city which would protest effectively at these poles, and as the citizens of that end of the city have organized for civic betterment, they may not always be so acquiescent to the disfiguration of their property.

Whitewashing Apple Trees

One of my neighbors is white-washing his apple trees. This is a ceremony performed religiously each year, generally in the spring, by farmers of the old school, and its purpose is to create an impassable zone, thereby keeping all crawling things either up in the tree or down in the ground. I never have fathomed which. One of the most trying duties of the farmer is to battle with insect pests and in many cases in trying to kill the pests he injures the trees.

The Candidates

Smiling, confident, cock-sure, the lineup of political aspirants greets us daily from the pages of our newspapers. Each seeks election, not because he really wants it, but at the earnest, sincere solicitation of his friends who have made him feel that it is his duty to serve his fellow-citizens. In every case the office seeks the man. Fickle! How can she square herself with all whom she seeks when she can accept only one!

I fear she is a heartless flirt, and I wonder if the ears of the aspirants, successful as well as unsuccessful, can hear her truly feminine chuckle as she casts her eye down the expense account each is obliged by law to render? Bonbons, flowers, theatre tickets and dinners may not be there, but, you know, "a rose by any other name" is still a rose.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

LAZY HOWARD

Once upon a time Howard's mother said she thought he was the laziest boy in town and that something must be done to break him of the bad habit. He didn't like to get up in the morning or go to school or to help his parents in so many little ways as other children did. Now, Howard did not mean to be a bad boy and he loved his father and mother very dearly, only he didn't just get around to doing things.

One bright, sunny day he went out into the garden to play and, as there was no one to play with, he asked a bumblebee to come and play with him. But the bee only flew away to a flower that was still in bloom as much as to say: "I have work to do, so I can't spare the time to play." Then Howard asked a bird to come and play with him but the bird flew away with a soft feather in his mouth, chirping as though to say: "Can't you see I am fixing my nest for the winter and can't stop?"

Howard found it was no fun playing alone so he sat down under a tree and watched the birds and the flying clouds. Soon his head dropped and he fell fast asleep. Just then Howard felt something take hold of his leg and his arm and in a minute he was flying through the air, as fast as any bird and soon was in a big forest right in front of the door of a great castle.

He was taken before the king, a great, gruff looking man, who asked him why he was not doing his part of the world's work. Poor Howard was very much frightened and couldn't answer. The king then said for his men to take Howard out and show him how everyone was working at something and how happy they were in doing so. The king said that everyone was slaving and laughing while they worked, but as soon as they saw him they grew angry and ran towards him, crying: "This is that lazy boy. Let's punish him."

They pulled his ears and hit him with their hands and bees began to sting him so that he cried out with pain and, as he did so, he awoke and found the bee on his hand.

Howard is not a lazy boy now and is called a real little helper for he doesn't want to have any more frightful dreams.

THE FRENCH MAID SAYS:

"I simply must get our housekeeping bills down lower," sighed Marjorie. "They seem to get more and more all the time and I am completely discouraged."

"Perhaps you and Mary can help by both watching the little things and spending for food," encouraged Marie. "Many of the little savings which seem too trivial to mention and much beneath the average maid's attention would, if carried out, make a vast difference in the buying of food."

"It is well to remember that if you save ten cents on a purchase of five cents you are saving not only a cent, but 20 per cent, which seems more worth while. When using a dozen eggs, as happens in some families often and in others on occasion, try scraping out the egg shells with a spoon. This will give you the amount of one egg and is well worth saving, especially while eggs are so very high."

"When eggs are cheap, they should be put down for the winter. Packed in water glass, they are just as good for any form of baking and will keep a year if properly done. A quart of water glass added to 12 quarts of boiled and cooled water, put into large stone crocks after the eggs are placed, will keep them perfectly. The eggs should, of course, be perfectly fresh and great care taken not to crack them. Cover the jar and keep in a cool place."

"One of the common wastes in most homes is the unscrapped mixing bowl. Spatulas may now be brought on the ten cent counter and a few turns of the wrist with a spatula will scrape out a dish, often saving the amount of an individual cake or gem or biscuit. If used bottomed mixing-bowls are used for dough mixtures, the scraping process will be much shortened, as the spatula, being flexible, will take up every bit of the dough."

"When apples are used, if the parings are saved and boiled with a little water, then the water added to equal quantities of sugar and boiled, a glass of jelly or two, which will be fresh and inviting will be ready for your table."

IN MILADY'S BOUDOIR

ATTRACTIVE HANDS

Attractive hands almost any woman may own if she is willing to give to these members a certain amount of time and thought. Time, because no hand will present the well groomed and cared for appearance that good form demands if treated only to the casual soap and water washing several times a day with an accompanying hasty use of a nail-stick, and thought because more than mere time must be given to the subject if one is to make the very most of one's hands.

Cultivate the habit of whisking the orange stick about whenever its point has been used, to push back the cuticle about the edge of the nail with the blunt or rounded end of the stick. If this is done systematically several times a day, the valuable half-moon at the base of the nail will always be in evidence, and the nails will maintain their proper shape.

Then you will not have to spend a frantic half hour pushing back the hardened cuticle, and perhaps acquire a sore finger into the bargain, when you are suddenly invited at short notice to go somewhere.

Never clip the nails into shape unless you want them to become thick and course at the edges. Clipped nails also break off more readily, especially in cold weather. Every woman should have a pair of curved manicure scissors on her dresser, but they should be put to use seldom, and then only for clipping a hang nail, or for cutting ting off the ends or sides of an over-long nail.

The dainty shaping should be done carefully with the nail-file and the nails may be pointed or rounded as the shape of the fingers and the general shape of the hand suggest. Very thin, tapering fingers look unpleasantly like talons when the nails are too long and too sharply pointed. Polished nails also emphasize the thickness of naturally thick and stubby fingers.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS SUPPLIED SEA RAIDERS

Sermon on Calmny by Rev. Fr. Charge Against Head of Ham- O'Brian, O. M. I.—Notes of the burg-American Line and Three Other Parishes Employees—Trial Opens

High mass at the church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday was celebrated by Rev. James McCartin, O.M.I., and the sermon was preached by Rev. John M. O'Brien, O.M.I., who took for his text the eighth commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." In his effective and earnest manner, Fr. O'Brien drove home the practical lessons of his sermon, blending eloquence with lucid treatment of his subject. He spoke in detail of the evils of calumny and detraction, sketching the great danger done by the tongue of the scandal monger who is often the source of family feuds and neighborhood disturbances in the community. He spoke of the malicious slanderer who attacks the good name of a neighbor and also of the idle gossip who is scarcely less a source of sin and scandal. He gave special emphasis to the necessity for reparation, as far as possible, before the sins of calumny and detraction are forgiven. In the case of calumny or slander, the malicious statements must be retracted, and where the real faults of another are published to a public which was not aware of them, the detractor is obliged to offset the damage done by emphasizing the good points in the victim's character. The sermon was strikingly practical and its lessons could be brought home with effectiveness to any congregation or audience.

There will be a business meeting of the Third Order of St. Francis Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening the Y.M.C. will hold its annual social and dance. There will be special Thanksgiving features, and a general good time is assured.

It was announced at the Immaculate Conception as well as all the Catholic churches of the city that a collection will be taken up next Sunday for the Catholic university.

St. Columba's

Rev. John A. Degan, pastor, celebrated the parish mass at St. Columba's yesterday and preached a strong sermon on the gospel of the day with special reference to the need for Catholics to adhere to the fundamental principles of their faith in the face of modern dangers. Fr. Degan drew a strong picture of that portion of the modern world which is going to extremes in scientific development and scientific efficiency, saying that the tendency is noticeable in the medical profession and elsewhere. He declared that we read and hear daily of things that are directly at variance with Christianity and a disgrace to Christian civilization, and he warned his congregation against having their principles endangered by false teaching. Much so-called new thought, he said, is as old as sin and is merely brought forward now in a new guise. He also said that there can be no real society which does not recognize the human soul and he condemned those who would justify the deliberate destruction of the body, in which the soul is enshrined.

Rev. T. W. Buckley celebrated the 8:30 o'clock mass at which the members of the Children's sodality received communion.

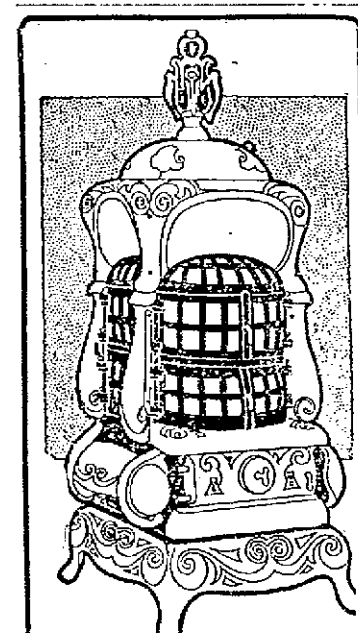

St. Patrick's

Monsignor William O'Brien celebrated the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday and the members of the Married Ladies' sodality and the Children of Mary received communion in a body. Rev. James J. Kerrigan assisted in giving communion.

The high mass was celebrated by Rev. Joseph A. Curtin and the sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Kerrigan. DEDICATES NEW CONVENT

CARDINAL O'CONNELL OFFICIATED AT ST. ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL—SISTERS HAVE SPLENDID HOME

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Cardinal O'Connell dedicated the handsome new convent building at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton, yesterday. It was a double celebration, as yesterday marked the 50th anniversary of Sister Rose in religion. Sister Rose is the mother superior of the convent, and head of the community of sisters attached to St. Elizabeth's hospital.

The dedication began with the celebration of mass by the cardinal. He was escorted from the hospital building to the convent by the Rev. Joseph F. Coppland, P.R., of St. Augustine's church, South Boston, and the Rev. J. P. Fallon, chaplain at the convent; Dr. John R. Slattery, superintendent of the hospital; T. B. Fitzpatrick, City Councilor; J. J. Attridge and John H. Lee. At the conclusion of the mass, which was begun at 3 a. m., Cardinal O'Connell addressed the gathering of about 200 guests, workers in the campaign in 1914 to raise funds for the endowment of the hospital. He said that St. Elizabeth's is already a glorious success; that it is second to no hospital anywhere from a scientific point of view; that it had a staff equal to any other in efficiency, skill and devotion, and that it is the very last word in equipment. He paid a tribute to Mother Superior Rose and to all the sisters attached to the hospital. He also paid tribute to Dr. Slattery and his staff, and to the workers. At the conclusion of his address, the cardinal held a reception in the reception hall adjoining the chapel.

The music was furnished by a choir of 25 voices, made up of the nurses attached to the hospital. Nurse Agnes E. Healey was the organist, and Nurse Molly O'Brien, the violinist. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given at 4 p. m.

ADMIRAL BOGGS DEAD

RETIRED FROM UNITED STATES NAVY AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS OF SEA DUTY

PARIS, Nov. 22, 4:55 a. m.—Rear Admiral Lawrence G. Boggs, U.S.N., retired, is dead at his home in this city. He left the active service in 1905 after 18 years of sea duty.

Rear Admiral Boggs was born in the District of Columbia and entered the navy as an ensign in 1874. He was promoted to lieutenant in 1878, to commander in 1884, to captain in 1894, and was promoted to the rank of admiral in 1905.

INDIANS MUST DEFEAT

The Indian football team of this city went to Portsmouth, N. H., yesterday afternoon to play the eleven of the basketball San Francisco. The navy team won after a hard fought contest, 13 to 6. The Lowell team was considerably out-weighted but put up a plucky game. This was the first defeat of the season for the Indians, but the players do not feel discouraged, as their victors make up a heavy, experienced eleven, which has won from some of the best teams in this part of the country.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The opening session today of the trial of Karl Huenz, managing director of the Hamburg-American line, and three other officials of the line, under indictment on charges of conspiring to defraud the government was devoted towards selecting a jury before Federal Judge Howe. The government alleges that the defendants secured false clearance papers for steamers sailing from New York with supplies for German sea raiders in the Atlantic during the early part of the war. The trial is the first important one in connection with the various conspiracy charges made against German and Austrian agents in this country.

Indicted with Huenz and appearing as defendants are Adolph Hochmeister, purchasing agent of the line, Joseph Poppenhausen, a second officer in the employ of the line, and George Kotter, its superintendent. A fifth man, Felix Seifner, an alleged supercargo of one of the supply ships, was indicted but has not been arrested.

Although many of the government's allegations have been conceded by counsel for the defense, it is expected that the trial will last a week as one hundred witnesses are under subpoena to testify for the government. Two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine on each of two indictments is the maximum penalty for the crime charged.

The prosecution is under the direction of J. H. Snowden Marshall, United States district attorney and his assistants, Roger B. Wood and John C. Knox, Jr. William R. C. C. counsel for Huenz concedes that four of the 15 vessels named in the indictments as supply ships were chartered as alleged, but asserts that the filing of false inquiries and manifests at the customs house was not intended to defraud the United States but to deceive the enemies of Germany. The defendants aver that the violations of customs regulations were not serious offenses. In view of these concessions, it is expected that the chief points to be passed upon by Judge Harland B. Howe, of Vermont, will be questions of law as to the jurisdiction of the United States over some of the supply steamers which are of foreign registry.

Four jurymen, tentative and subject to challenge, have been selected at noon. This represented half of the talesmen examined.

In nearly every case prospective jurors were of foreign birth or parentage or had sympathy with one side or the other of the warring nations of Europe. Counsel asked searching questions of every talesman to develop whether he had even the remotest personal interest in the war, particularly as to German submarine warfare, in cases where such interest was revealed, the talesman was excused.

Included among the persons whose acquaintance such talesman was asked if he possessed were the German, French and British ambassadors, their aides and staffs, J. P. Morgan, his partners and employees (J. P. Morgan & Co. are fiscal agents here of the British and French governments) and the various European consuls here.

When the 1 o'clock recess was taken on nine tentative jurors had been selected.

TO RUN DOWN PLOTTER

U. S. Government Asks States to Aid in Obtaining Evidence—To Employ All Resources

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The whole machinery of the United States government will be employed to run down and punish those responsible for factory explosions, intimidation of labor and other acts of violence against American industries.

This is made clear in an announcement by Attorney General Gregory, who calls upon state authorities to use equal vigor in dealing with lawlessness beyond the reach of federal statutes.

The attorney general was led to say, he says, as a result of the frequency with which acts of violence have occurred recently, adding that the situation demands vigorous action on the part of the state and federal governments.

Attention is called by Mr. Gregory to the difficulty of prosecution of crimes of violence, such as arson, malicious destruction of property, etc., under the federal criminal statutes. He says that these offenses must ordinarily be dealt with under state laws.

A. B. Bielaski, chief of the investigators of the department of justice, laid before Attorney General Gregory today the results of his visit to the Atlanta penitentiary, where he went to gather additional evidence from Gustav Stahl, serving a sentence in connection with passport frauds in New York.

Officials thought Stahl had knowledge of the men higher up in the conspiracies. Whether Bielaski secured additional information was not made public.
